—ON TOUR— Pope In Search Of Unity

Jerusalem (AP)—Pope Paul VI is arriving in the Holy Land Saturday to walk in Jesus' footsteps along the paths that led much of the world to Christianity. It is an historic visitation which he hopes will spur Christian unity and help bring world peace.

This is the first visit by a Roman Catholic pontiff to this holy place for Moslem, Christian and Jew and possibly the longest journey ever made by a pope.

The Pope has said the trip is one of offering, search, hope and prayer, with the aim that there may be one shepherd and one fold.

Flags Fly

In both sectors of divided Jerusalem, yellow and white banners of the Vatican fluttered with flags of Jordan and Israel. Jordan still considers itself at war with Israel and a no-man's land of sandbags and barbed wire cuts the city in two.

In the hours before the Roman Catholic leader's arrival, troops of both nations guarded their borders, till the occasional scene of conflict despite the armistice that halted full-scale fighting 15 years ago.

Any flareup between Jordanian and Israeli during an event of such historic significance was considered unthinkable.

Until Monday

Pope Paul will remain in Jordan and Israel until Monday. During his stay he will meet with Patriarch Athenagoras I, the spiritual leader of the world's Orthodox Christians, who have been separated from Rome since the 15th Century, although the split began in the 11th Century.

Pope Paul's journey will entail nearly 3,500 miles of travel both ways. The longest prior papal trip of this century was made by Pope John XXIII, who traveled 400 miles by rail from Rome to the Italian shrines in Loreto and Assisi in October 1962. Pope Paul is the first pontiff to fly while in office.

Both Jordan and Israel arranged the tightest security measures since the outbreak of the Arab-Israeli War in 1948.

9,000 Troops

Jordan had 9,000 troops and a good part of its police force set to guard the Pope from his arrival point, the Jordanian capital of Amman, to the point where he crosses into the Israeli sector Sunday.

King Hussein of Jordan prepared to greet the Pope at Amman, rendering to him the honors due a chief of state. President Zalman Shazar arranged a similar welcome at the Pope's entrance to the Israeli sector.

On the eve of the Pope's departure from Rome, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol of Israel said in a statement that Israel will respect the non-political nature of the journey. This has been a point of possible friction with Arabs, for some felt the Pope's presence in Israel was in fact Vatican recognition of the Jewish state.

Escort

At Amman, Jordanian air force jet fighters waited to escort the papal plane, a new American-made DC8 jetliner provided by Italy's Alitalia Air Line.

Nik's Peace Proposal Disappointing To U.S.

Washington (AP)—The United States branded Soviet Premier Khrushchev's new peace proposal as biased Friday and said it was a disappointing response to President Johnson's call for improving international relations.

Khrushchev's message to Johnson and other government heads, proposing a global agreement renouncing the use of force in settling territorial disputes, was not rejected out of hand, however.

The U.S. government promised to give the proposal careful study together with the Western allies.

Not Obstructing

Despite their distaste for Khrushchev's wording of his plan, U.S. strategists did not want this country to seem to be obstructing a Kremlin move which might have much propaganda appeal.

The official U.S. comment on Khrushchev's 6,000-word message delivered to Johnson Thursday was issued by the State Department after Secretary Dean Rusk consulted the President, who is in Texas, by telephone.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said:

"On the face of it, Mr. Khrushchev's message to the President is not an objective statement of the problem of territorial disputes and is therefore a disappointing response to President Johnson's call for progress toward peace.

Careful Study

"However, we will give it careful study together with our allies in order to ascertain whether we can develop any constructive steps which would help in easing tensions throughout the world."

A State Department source

told newsmen that the Khrushchev message did not live up to Johnson's New Year's call for steps toward peace because it advanced just the Soviet version on how to resolve a number of outstanding disputes.

Khrushchev's lengthy tract presented oft-repeated Kremlin claims and appeared to leave open the possible use of force where the Reds see fit to fight "imperialist" or "colonialist" powers.

Western countries like the United States fall within this Communist definition.

For example, the Khrushchev letter declared Formosa presents a case where "unlawful occupation by American troops should be terminated." Backing Peking's claim, Khrushchev pictured the Chinese Nationalist-held island as a territory where liberation "from colonial oppression or foreign occupation" is still incomplete.

Khrushchev declared that where colonial powers use force against "legitimate demands" for freedom "the oppressed peoples have no other choice but to take up arms themselves—and this is their sacred right."

Justify

This is an argument the Reds have been using to justify what they portray as wars of liberation in places like South Viet Nam.

For Germany, Korea and Viet Nam, Khrushchev said these divided lands should be left to settle their territorial problem "without any foreign military intervention."

The United States and other Western powers are heavily committed in these countries to protect against what the West sees as the Red threat.

And in an apparent reference to U.S. bases at Guantanamo, Cuba, and elsewhere, Khrushchev called for liquidation of "war bases established in foreign territories."

McCloskey said he did not know when Johnson might send a reply.

Assailant Killed In Rail Mishap--County Attorney

... Two Men Lived In Same House; Witnesses To Slaying Reported Held

By TOM KEITH
Star Staff Writer

"We are convinced Sylvester Lee killed William Nelson with a long-handled axe," said Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas early Saturday morning, to close the first stage of investigation in a Friday morning murder case.

Lee, 44 of Kansas City, Mo., who while in Lincoln lived with J. William (Bill) Nelson, 69, of 526 No. 19th, died himself some hours later nearly 40 miles away when he apparently fell off and under a fast-moving freight train that he had hitched to take him away from the murder scene and back to Kansas City, Douglas said.

Lee's body was found near Adams, about 40 miles south of Lincoln Friday morning by a railroad section crewman.

Douglas said the killing occurred in Nelson's home "sometime between 1:30 and 2:30 a.m." Friday. He said the information was obtained through questioning of two people who witnessed the murder.

Douglas identified the witnesses as Mary Jenkins, 60, and Willie Gilman, 32, of 1805 R.

Miss Jenkins, Nelson, Lee, and Herschel A. Fanton, 68, all lived together at Nelson's home.

Argued Over Rent

Douglas said the witnesses told him the killing took place after an argument between Lee and Nelson "over the payment of rent."

Lee struck Nelson in the back of the head with the blunt end of the axe, according to Douglas.

Douglas said after the killing Lee and Miss Jenkins called a taxicab and left the house. Lee took Miss Jenkins to the bus depot where she boarded a bus for Omaha.

The whereabouts of Lee was not positively known until his body was found Friday morning.

Lee's Body Found First

Investigation of the case opened by the finding of Lee's body. Papers on his person indicated he resided at the 526 No. 19th address.

Lee's badly mutilated body was dragged some 300 feet by the train before it fell away from the train, according to Gage County Sheriff Fred Steinkamp Jr., who said he "assumed" that Lee had been "riding the rails" when he fell from the freight train.

Positive identification of the decapitated body was made after authorities took fingerprints from the arms which had been severed from the body.

The Burlington train, carrying Lee, left Lincoln about 2:30 a.m., according to Douglas, and passed near Adams enroute to Kansas City.

Police Called

Police Capt. Eugene R. Henninger said police went to the Nelson home after receiving a call that Nelson was lying on the floor sick or hurt. Police dispatched an ambulance to the address.

The Captain said the call came from a man who stopped at Nelson's home to see him.

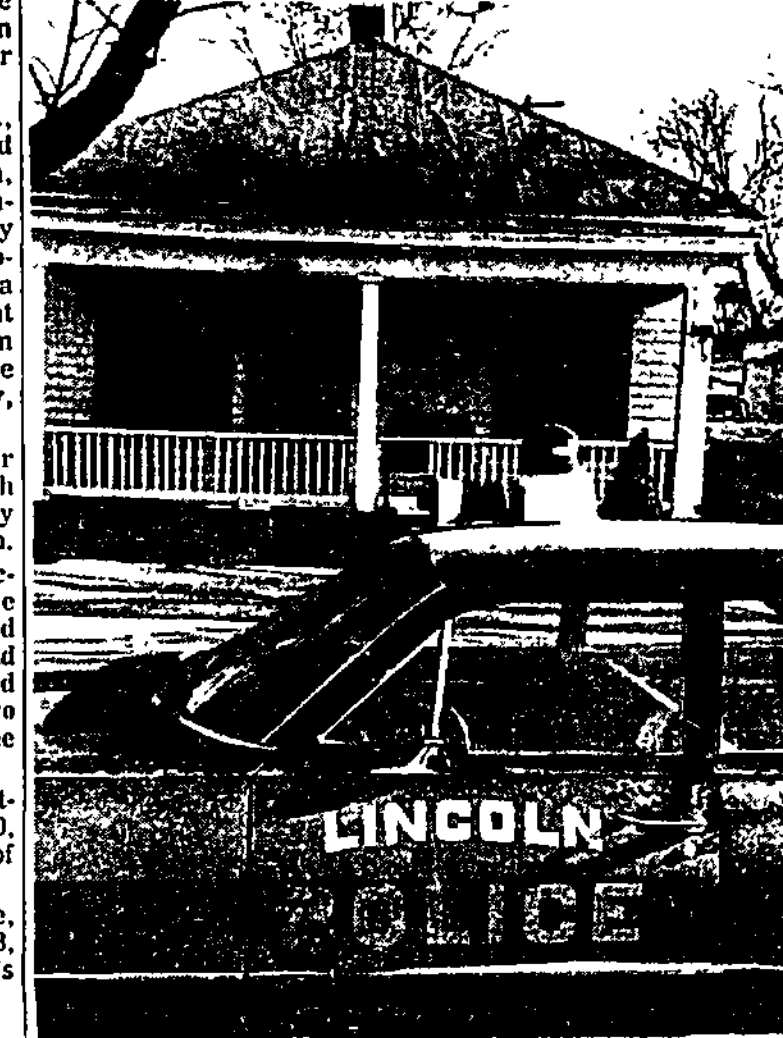

For a time the finding of the man's body with the Lincoln address in his pocket had been handled routinely by police. Then came the call for an ambulance to the same address.

Police found Nelson's body lying on the floor between a sink and a stove. Fanton, who was arrested at the scene for drunkenness, said he saw Nelson lying there about 3 a.m., but thought he was asleep, according to police.

Fanton was the first to be questioned, but Douglas said he was "pretty incoherent."

Police arrested Gilman Friday evening and he was questioned until early Saturday morning.

Miss Jenkins reportedly went to her mother's home in Omaha, where she was arrested Friday afternoon by Lincoln Police Lt. Lowell Sellmeyer. Sellmeyer returned her to Lincoln Friday night and

Slain Man Gave Mortuary Information For His Obituary

John William Nelson, killed Friday by blows on the head with a blunt instrument, had listed his obituary information last month with Umberger's mortuary.

Nelson listed his birth as April 9, 1894 in Lincoln. He was a lifetime resident of Lincoln. Nelson classified himself as a construction and stationary engineer.

He served in World War I in Europe and was a member of American Legion Post 3.

Nelson listed his survivors as: wife, Eva Barber of Omaha; one sister, Miss Mary C. of San Francisco, Calif.; three brothers, Mark B. of Detroit, Mich., David A. of Washington, D. C. and Ben of San Francisco.

Nelson gave the information when he was a pallbearer for a funeral at the mortuary.

Nelson Lee

she too was interrogated until early Saturday morning.

Douglas said the witnesses gave him no reason for not reporting the incident to the police.

Police said Lee struck Nelson with the axe at the base of the skull and Nelson "died almost instantly" from the blow.

Lee had a police record, according to officials, including charges of assault, assault with a deadly weapon, and at one time was a suspect in another murder case.

Nelson was known to Lincoln police primarily as a "bootlegger," officials said.

Evidence Of Drinking

Douglas said there were several liquor bottles found at the scene of the murder, an indication that considerable heavy drinking had taken place before the killing.

Both witnesses identified the axe, discovered Friday night, as being the weapon that crushed the back of Nelson's skull.

Douglas said the three witnesses—Miss Jenkins, Fanton, and Gilman—would be held for further investigation, but said "I won't know if charges will be filed against them until the police have completed their investigation." He said this would "probably be sometime Monday."

A police report said Lee had a wife who resides in Kansas City, but another report, also from police, said he did not. Confirmation on either report was not immediately available.

Mayor Brandt's Talks With E. Germans OK'd

Berlin (UPI)—The Western allies gave permission to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt Friday to negotiate with the East German Communists on an extension of passage rights through the wall. The Reds said they were ready to talk.

An American spokesman said the allies, who hold veto power over decisions of the West Berlin city government, told Brandt he could proceed with negotiations on condition he keep them informed of every step.

East German Communist Party chief Walter Ulbricht said his government is prepared to discuss the question of keeping the wall crossings open beyond the Sunday midnight deadline on Christmas passes.

Wild Rush

In a rush to beat the scheduled deadline, West Berliners swarmed through the Communist-built wall into East Berlin by the thousands Friday. West Berlin officials estimated the total visiting friends and relatives in the eastern sector would reach 1.3 million by Sunday midnight.

Though Brandt has pressed for talks with the East Germans to extend the free movement through the wall dividing the city, the allies until now have feared such talks would indicate a recognition of the East German regime. The allies do not recognize the Ulbricht government and have insisted that the Russians are responsible for such matters.

The U.S. spokesman said Brandt was allowed to seek a possible extension of the Christmas agreement after he informed the Americans, British and French on how the West Berlin government planned to approach negotiations with East German representatives.

Talks Slated

Technical talks on the subject were scheduled for Saturday between East German State Secretary Erich Wendt and his West Berlin counterpart, Horst Korber.

Ulbricht told a rally in East Berlin that he was willing to discuss the pass issue with the West Berlin city government. He said he himself had originally proposed the Christmas pass agreement which, he said, provided a "chunk of self-determination" for West Berlin.

The Communist leader predicted the time would come when the West German government will negotiate directly with the East German regime. He was addressing a rally celebrating the 45th anniversary of the founding of the German Communist party.

Anxious

The Western allies and the federal government in Bonn were said to be anxious that any possible new agreement with the East avoid damaging the independent status of West Berlin. The Communists have claimed that West Berlin no longer is an integral part of West Germany.

President Continues To Trim His Budget

Johnson City, Tex. (UPI)—President Johnson Friday disclosed a new cut of "several hundred million dollars" from the space program in his budget-trimming program. He held out the possibility of a fiscal 1965 budget slightly below his current target of $100 billion.

The President said the space fund cuts did not alter the basic plan to put a man on the moon in this decade. He noted a comparable cut in the Atomic Energy Commission budget but did not specify the figure.

He said there might be an additional cut in the military budget, already trimmed $1 billion to about $51 billion.

Johnson also watched the international scene. He had available a summary of the lengthy message Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev sent to world leaders Thursday calling for peaceful settlement of territorial disputes. The summary was transmitted to the ranch by the State Department Thursday night.

The President's appointment list also included Charles E. Bohlen, U.S. Ambassador to France, and David K. E. Bruce, U.S. ambassador to Britain. Both are in the United States for consultation.

Johnson's statement on labor-management relations was in reply to a report Wirtz sent him Thursday saying "that this country has experienced an unparalleled era of industrial peace during the past four years."

The President said the report was "most important and gratifying" and called it "an indication of a growing maturity and responsibility in the collective bargaining process."

Still Woes But Johnson added: "This progress, this record of achievement does not mean that complex problems do not still exist on the industrial relations scene."

Johnson also said, however, he will continue trying to trim departmental and agency budgets "right up to the last minute."

Neighborhood White House officials reported earlier that the final budget was expected to be "in the neighborhood" of $100 billion. The budget for the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30 is $98.8 billion.

"We are going to try to meet the unfilled needs of the country and still save every dime we can," the President said.

A reporter asked Johnson whether he was trying to submit the budget at something under $100 billion even if only by a relatively small amount.

Inclination Johnson smiled, winked at the reporter and said, "You suspect my inclination."

The President discussed the budget after issuing a statement hailing four years of "unparalleled" industrial peace.

He called on both labor and management to work harder to solve the problem of unemployment caused by automation.

Washington (AP)—The Agriculture Department approved Friday the sale of one million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union with export subsidies in excess of $25 million.

The more than 37 million bushels of wheat, valued at $90 million according to U.S. prices, was sold by Continental Grain Co. of New York for $78.5 million—the world price plus delivery costs for shipping it to Russia.

The subsidy is designed to repay the exporter for the difference between the U.S. prices, fixed by farm price support programs, at which he must buy and the world price at which he must sell the wheat.

Largest A department spokesman said the Continental sale was the largest single commercial grain deal ever made by an American concern. He said the Russians will pay in cash.

The Agriculture Department said the Continental sale amounts to about one-fourth of the total the Soviet Union is expected to buy during the current marketing year.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department granted export licenses for shipment of about $85 million worth of surplus wheat to the Soviet Union. It has now issued export licenses for about $125 million worth of wheat to be sold to Russia.

Included This included an additional authorization for Continental to export its wheat to Russia. Previously, the firm had obtained permission to export $40.6 million worth of wheat.

These developments apparently opened the door for eventual sale to Russia and other Iron Curtain nations of millions of bushels of surplus American wheat and other grains.

Russian agents have indicated they are seeking more than 150 million bushels of wheat in America and when the late President John F. Kennedy announced his approval last Oct. 9 of wheat sales to Russia there were predictions that total sales might amount to $350 million to $400 million.

In an announcement from its New York headquarters, Continental said the wheat to be shipped to Russia includes:

—560,000 tons (18,372,500 bushels) of No. 2 hard winter wheat to be shipped from U.S. gulf ports to Russian Black Sea ports.

—150,000 tons (5,511,750 bushels) of No. 2 western white wheat and No. 2 hard winter wheat (50,000 tons of white wheat and the rest winter wheat) to be shipped from Pacific coast ports to Siberian ports.

Durum —350,000 tons (12,060,750 bushels) of No. 1 hard amber durum wheat to be shipped from Atlantic ports to Russian Black Sea ports.

Continental is one of the nation's largest grain exporters.

The government already has sold the 350,000 tons of durum wheat to Continental from its surplus stocks. The other wheat will be bought by Continental in the open market, and possibly some from the government.

The export subsidy rate on the hard winter wheat will be 65 cents a bushel, and that on the white wheat 51 cents. The subsidy on half of the durum will be 72 cents, and on the other half 73 cents.

The department spokesman justified the higher subsidy for the durum on the grounds that the Continental deal offered the government an unforeseen opportunity to get rid of a surplus that it had expected to carry for possibly two or three years, at annual storage costs of $1.8 million.

The spokesman would not concede that the durum subsidy was designed to help the grain company meet the higher transportation charges of American-flag ships.

Australia, New Zealand Slow To Help Malaysia

London (AP)—A British Commonwealth tangle was reported Friday night over the reluctance of Australia and New Zealand to send troops to Malaysia's Borneo states, now menaced by Indonesia.

Mounting fear of war between Malaysia and Indonesia has convinced British defense chiefs that joint action is necessary, informed sources said. Britain has stepped up consultations with Australia and New Zealand.

In Canberra, Australia's capital, diplomatic sources reported Britain is antagonizing Australia and New Zealand with an attempt to get its partners to send troops to Borneo.

New Zealand and Australia by the agreement of May 1963 joined Britain in undertaking to repel any aggression against Malaysia, a federation of the former British colonies of Malaya and Singapore and the ex-British territories of Sarawak and Sabah on Borneo.

New Zealand and Australia have troops in a Commonwealth brigade in Malaya, but this is a strategic reserve far from Sarawak and Sabah.

While ready to send troops to Sarawak and Sabah if necessary, Australia believes the request should come from Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia, Canberra sources said.

Pressing The informants added that Britain now is trying to press Rahman to make the troops call on New Zealand and Australia, although they insist Rahman himself believes this step is unnecessary now.

President Continues To Trim His Budget

Johnson City, Tex. (UPI)—President Johnson Friday disclosed a new cut of "several hundred million dollars" from the space program in his budget-trimming program. He held out the possibility of a fiscal 1965 budget slightly below his current target of $100 billion.

The President said the space fund cuts did not alter the basic plan to put a man on the moon in this decade. He noted a comparable cut in the Atomic Energy Commission budget but did not specify the figure.

He said there might be an additional cut in the military budget, already trimmed $1 billion to about $51 million.

Impromptu
In an impromptu news conference on the LBJ Ranch, the President cautioned newsmen against using a single budget total, because the overall figure was changing from day to day.

He said he could not positively state what the final budget total will be until Jan. 8, when the document must be turned over to government printers.

The President said, however, he will continue trying to trim departmental and agency budgets "right up to the last minute."

Neighborhood
White House officials reported earlier that the final budget was expected to be "in the neighborhood" of $100 billion. The budget for the current fiscal year, which ends next June 30 is $98.8 billion.

"We are going to try to meet the unfilled needs of the country and still save every dime we can," the President said.

A reporter asked Johnson whether he was trying to submit the budget at something under $100 billion even if only by a relatively small amount.

Inclination
Johnson smiled, winked at the reporter and said, "You suspect my inclination."

The President discussed the budget after issuing a statement hailing four years of "unparalleled" industrial peace.

He called on both labor and management to work harder to solve the problem of unemployment caused by automation.

Aids Consumer
At the same time, Johnson gave the American consumer an advocate at the White House by naming Mrs. Esther Peterson a special assistant to advise him on problems such as packaging and pricing. Mrs. Peterson is assistant secretary of labor, specializing in matters that involve women workers.

The President met at his ranch with Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz and Mrs. Peterson. They were the latest in a stream of cabinet and sub-cabinet visitors since Johnson's arrival for a holiday Dec. 24. The holiday will end this weekend.

Johnson also watched the international scene. He had available a summary of the lengthy message Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev sent to world leaders Thursday calling for peaceful settlement of territorial disputes. The summary was transmitted to the ranch by the State Department Thursday night.

The President's appointment list also included Charles E. Bohlen, U.S. Ambassador to France, and David K. E. Bruce, U.S. ambassador to Britain. Both are in the United States for consultation.

Johnson's statement on labor-management relations was in reply to a report Wirtz sent him Thursday saying "that this country has experienced an unparalleled era of industrial peace during the past four years."

The President said the report was "most important and gratifying" and called it "an indication of a growing maturity and responsibility in the collective bargaining process."

Still Woes
But Johnson added: "This progress, this record of achievement does not mean that complex problems do not still exist on the industrial relations scene."

"While labor and management have, on the whole, come to grips successfully with the question of wages and hours and working conditions, they have still to improve the machinery for meeting the challenge presented by today's technology."

He noted that employers, faced with competition, seek rightly "to adopt manpower-saving devices when they will assist them in meeting the needs of the market."

Protect Interests
"Unions, faced with the threat of jobs lost through automation, rightly seek to protect the interests of the workers by providing security against job displacement," Johnson said.

These conflicting motives sometimes result in strikes and shutdowns, the President said, but "more and more the parties are discovering that there is genuine desire to achieve it."

Ag Dept. OKs Sale Of A Million Tons Of Wheat To Soviet Union

Washington (AP)—The Agriculture Department approved Friday the sale of one million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union with export subsidies in excess of $25 million.

The more than 37 million bushels of wheat, valued at $90 million according to U.S. prices, was sold by Continental Grain Co. of New York for $78.5 million—the world price plus delivery costs for shipping it to Russia.

The subsidy is designed to repay the exporter for the difference between the U.S. prices, fixed by farm price support programs, at which he must buy and the world price at which he must sell the wheat.

Largest
A department spokesman said the Continental sale was the largest single commercial grain deal ever made by an American concern. He said the Russians will pay in cash.

The Agriculture Department said the Continental sale amounts to about one-fourth of the total Soviet Union is expected to buy during the current marketing year.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department granted export licenses for shipment of about $85 million worth of surplus wheat to the Soviet Union. It has now issued export licenses for about $125 million worth of wheat to be sold to Russia.

Included
This included an additional authorization for Continental to export its wheat to Russia. Previously, the firm had obtained permission to export $40.6 million worth of wheat.

These developments apparently opened the door for eventual sale to Russia and other Iron Curtain nations of millions of bushels of surplus American wheat and other grains.

Russian agents have indicated they are seeking more than 150 million bushels of wheat in America and when the late President John F. Kennedy announced his approval last Oct. 9 of wheat sales to Russia there were predictions that total sales might amount to $350 million to $400 million.

Give Boost
This would give a boost to farm income, help ease the U.S. balance of payments problem and also provide a partial solution for America's surplus commodity problems, Kennedy said.

The deal had been hanging fire since last October, snarled in hard bargaining with the Russians over terms of the sales and also in a political controversy.

Congressional Republicans made a determined effort to prevent the U.S. government from providing credit guarantees on sales to Russia as it does for other countries in similar deals by trying to write this ban into the foreign aid money bill passed last Monday.

In the end, President Johnson won the right to extend credit guarantees to Communist countries when he deems it is in the national interest.

In an announcement from its New York headquarters, Continental said the wheat to be shipped to Russia includes:

—500,000 tons (18,372,500 bushels) of No. 2 hard winter wheat to be shipped from U.S. gulf ports to Russian Black Sea ports.

—150,000 tons (5,511,750 bushels) of No. 2 western white wheat and No. 2 hard winter wheat (50,000 tons of white wheat and the rest winter wheat) to be shipped from Pacific coast ports to Siberian ports.

Durum
—350,000 tons (12,860,750 bushels) of No. 1 hard amber durum wheat to be shipped from Atlantic ports to Russian Black Sea ports.

Continental is one of the nation's largest grain exporters.

The government already has sold the 350,000 tons of durum wheat to Continental from its surplus stocks. The other wheat will be bought by Continental in the open market, and possibly some from the government.

The export subsidy rate on the hard winter wheat will be 65 cents a bushel, and that on the white wheat 51 cents. The subsidy on half of the durum will be 72 cents, and on the other half 73 cents.

The department spokesman justified the higher subsidy for the durum on the grounds that the Continental deal offered the government an unforeseen opportunity to get rid of a surplus that it had expected to carry for possibly two or three years, at annual storage costs of $1.8 million.

The spokesman would not concede that the durum subsidy was designed to help the grain company meet the higher transportation charges of American-flag ships.

MAKARIOS SAYS: Cyprus Meet Aim—Real Independence

Nicosia, Cyprus (AP)—This month's Cypriot conference in London is designed to create "a really independent and unified state free from any form of outside intervention and interference," President Makarios of Cyprus declared Friday.

The words of the Greek Cypriot president seemed to be directed at Turkey — accused by his government before the United Nations of intervening in the recent bloody communal fighting on Cyprus.

Greece and Turkey have been invited to join Britain and Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders at the London conference to work out a plan to keep the peace in this island republic. Greece, Turkey and Britain are bound by treaty to defend Cyprus from aggression.

Hurrying back to London from Cyprus, Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys reported to an emergency session of Britain's cabinet on his discussions with Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders on the conference plan.

The British cabinet decided to get in touch at once with the Greek and Turkish governments and Cypriot leaders to complete plans and set a date for the conference.

On his trouble-shooting mission here, Sandys won agreement on the conference from both Makarios and Dr. Fazil Kutchuk, the Turkish Cypriot who is vice president of Cyprus.

Minor Incidents
Minor incidents in scattered villages were reported on the fifth day of the cease-fire between Greek and Turkish Cypriots, and life in Nicosia appeared more normal than on any day since fighting broke out Dec. 21. Troops patrolling the streets walked among numerous shoppers, and children romped in parks.

British army negotiators erased a potential source of new trouble by inducing the Turkish Cypriots to release 11 Greek Cypriots held as hostages for two days in the Turkish quarter of Nicosia.

Meeting with foreign and local newsmen at his first general news conference since the fighting broke out, Makarios said if the London conference fails he will seek a solution "with all peaceful means at our disposal." This includes taking the case to the United Nations, he added.

Convinced
Makarios said the recent violence has convinced everyone that the Zurich and London agreements of 1959, on which the present Cyprus regime is based, need radical revision.

The Negro's trial is scheduled to start Monday and prosecutors, who say they will seek the death penalty, expect a lengthy period of jury selection.

Brown said Melvin Belli, the San Francisco lawyer heading Ruby's defense, had called expressing a desire for a brief delay in the hearing because of a conflict in his schedule.

Australia, New Zealand Slow To Help Malaysia

London (AP)—A British Commonwealth tangle was reported Friday night over the reluctance of Australia and New Zealand to send troops to Malaysia's Borneo states, now menaced by Indonesia.

Mounting fear of war between Malaysia and Indonesia has convinced British defense chiefs that joint action is necessary, informed sources said. Britain has stepped up consultations with Australia and New Zealand.

In Canberra, Australia's capital, diplomatic sources reported Britain is antagonizing Australia and New Zealand with an attempt to get its partners to send troops to Borneo.

New Zealand and Australia by the agreement of May 1963 joined Britain in undertaking to repel any aggression against Malaysia, a federation of the former British colonies of Malaya and Singapore and the ex-British territories of Sarawak and Sabah on Borneo.

New Zealand and Australia have troops in a Commonwealth brigade in Malaya, but this is a strategic reserve far from Sarawak and Sabah.

While ready to send troops to Sarawak and Sabah if necessary, Australia believes the request should come from Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia, Canberra sources said.

Pressing
The informants added that Britain now is trying to press Rahman to make the troops call on New Zealand and Australia, although they insist Rahman himself believes this step is unnecessary now.

Sources in Wellington, New Zealand, said there is no immediate possibility of sending additional New Zealand troops to Malaysia.

Britain, on the other hand, feels it needs help because its military manpower has been stretched thin by the troubles on Cyprus and around Aden, its major military positions in the Middle East.

12,000 Troops
Britain has about 12,000 troops, including Gurkhas, on duty combatting terrorist infiltrators into Sarawak and Sabah from Indonesia's part of the island of Borneo.

Malaysia and Indonesia, meanwhile reported they would accuse each other of aggression before the United Nations.

Rahman told parliament in Kuala Lumpur that U.N. Secretary-General U Thant had been informed of what he called Indonesia's aggression and added: "A time will come when this issue will be taken up in the U.N. Security Council."

Violated
"The Indonesians have repeatedly violated our air space, robbed and killed our fishermen and murdered innocent citizens in our territory," the Malaysian prime minister declared.

Malaysia's defense minister, Tun Abdul Razak, said Australia and New Zealand had offered to help "in case of Indonesian aggression."

In the Indonesian capital of Jakarta, Foreign Minister Subandrio declared in a statement that "the violations (of Indonesian territory) conducted by Britain and Malaysia are considerable." He said the evidence had been turned over to Thant.

Subandrio said Indonesia will continue to aid the "independence struggle in Sarawak and Sabah. Indonesia has vowed to wreck the Malaysian federation. It is believed to covet both Sarawak and Sabah.

Goldy Makes Bid For Nomination; Rocky Calls For Series Of Debates

Phoenix, Ariz. (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater announced Friday he would seek the 1964 Republican presidential nomination to offer voters a "clear choice" between his resurgent conservatism and the liberal Republicanism of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"I will offer a choice, not an echo," said Goldwater, in a long-expected declaration of candidacy followed by a renewed attack on President Johnson, the expected Democratic standard-bearer.

Goldwater joined Rockefeller as the only avowed candidates for the GOP nomination, and his statement included an obvious slap at the New York Republican.

"I decided to do this because I have not heard from any announced Republican candidate a declaration of conscience or of political position that could possibly offer to the American people a clear choice in the next presidential election," the sun-tanned Arizonan said.

Goldwater immediately announced he would enter a series of state primaries, starting with New Hampshire in which he will confront Rockefeller. He also said he would enter Illinois and California primaries, as well as the Oregon primary in which supporters entered him previously.

Rockefeller, in New York City, immediately welcomed the announcement and again challenged Goldwater to a series of debates on their conflicting viewpoint in the New Hampshire primary campaign.

14,000 TO BE CALLED TO COLORS IN MARCH

Washington (AP)—The Defense Department issued a draft call Friday for 14,000 men in March. All will be inducted into the Army.

The March quota is 2,000 bigger than February.

ter to Richard M. Tobias, news director of radio station WHAM.

Tobias had written Lodge, asking whether he would "bow to public opinion" and enter the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

"I have no intention of running for any office," Lodge replied. "I think my work here in Viet Nam is the most useful thing I can do. There is much at stake in Viet Nam and American soldiers are under fire here. My pressing duty, therefore is here."

Lodge was the GOP candidate for vice president in the 1960 election.

Hayley Edges Liz In Britain

London (AP)—Haley Mills, 18 in April, has displaced Elizabeth Taylor as Britain's No. 1 female movie boxoffice draw.

A survey of 2,000 theaters placed Hayley, daughter of Actor John Mills, fifth in the international star poll and Miss Taylor sixth.

The first four places went to men, in this order: British pop singer Cliff Richard, Peter Sellers, Elvis Presley and Sean (James Bond) Connery.

Buddhist Chaplains

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—The Saigon government announced it is forming a Buddhist chaplains' corps in the South Vietnamese armed forces in response to a request by leading Buddhist monks. The request was one of the demands made by Buddhist leaders during last summer's uprising against the Ngo Dinh Diem government. The order creating a Buddhist chaplains' corps was signed by Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Tran Van Don, a Roman Catholic.

Citizenship Renounced By Huston

Dublin (UPI)—Missouri-born film director John Huston renounced his American citizenship Friday and became an Irish citizen. He said his wife and two children will follow his example shortly.

The 57-year-old Huston who has maintained his home at Craughwell, County Galway, for the past 12 years, received his new Irish passport at a brief, formal ceremony in the Department of Justice after surrendering his American passport at the U.S. embassy.

After the ceremony Huston said: Ireland has been the only home I have had since the war. I guess you could call this move a sort of atavism—a desire to get back to the roots of my ancestors. "All the children center around Ireland."

Huston, whose films include "The African Queen," "The Asphalt Jungle" and "Moby Dick," said he will have to apply for a work permit and a visa for the United States, but "I don't anticipate any difficulty about this."

He said he believes there is a great potential in Ireland and that he plans to devote much of his time to building up the film industry.

Huston was born in Nevada, Mo., Aug. 5, 1906. American law prohibited him from taking Irish citizenship without renouncing his U.S. citizenship, although there is no such requirement in Ireland.

Minister, Son Arraigned In Columbus Case

... Change Of Venue May Be Requested

Columbus (AP) — Three men were arraigned in District Court Friday in two separate cases which have common backgrounds.

The Rev. George D. Swiney 46, pastor of the Bible Baptist Church of Columbus, and his son, Loren Swiney, 22, were arraigned before District Judge R. D. Flory on child stealing charges stemming from the removal of four children of Mrs. Carol Brinkman of Columbus in August.

Long Hearing Is Likely For Baker-Curtis

Washington (AP) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said Friday the investigation of the outside business affairs of former Senate aide Robert G. Baker is likely to last longer than first anticipated.

Curtis, senior GOP member of the Senate Rules Committee which is conducting the investigation, told a reporter that hearings may last into May or June.

Baker, a protégé of President Johnson when Johnson was Senate Democratic leader, resigned under fire Oct. 7 as secretary to the Senate Democratic majority.

The Senate promptly directed its Rules Committee to investigate whether Baker or other Senate employees had engaged in business activities that conflicted with their official duties, or involved other improprieties.

Sen. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., the committee chairman, originally expressed hope the inquiry could be completed in a couple of months, but so far only one public hearing has been held.

File Income Tax Early, Says Vinal

Omaha (UPI) — With the start of another federal income tax filing period, Richard P. Vinal, director of Internal Revenue for Nebraska, urges taxpayers to file early.

He advised that early filing enables the Internal Revenue Service to give better service to taxpayers. Vinal said the Internal Revenue office in Omaha will be open to give assistance to taxpayers on each of the following Mondays during the filing period: Jan. 6, 13, 20, 27; Feb. 3, 10, 17, 24; March 2, 9, 16, 23, 30; April 6, 13, and Wednesday the 15th.

Mrs. Brinkman accused her husband, Harold Brinkman, 37, the minister and his son of child stealing. The children were subsequently returned.

Both the Swineys pleaded innocent and their bonds of $1,000 each were continued. Leonard Dunker of Lincoln, their attorney, asked Judge Flory to disqualify himself from the trial on the grounds that both had been before the third judicial district court previously. Judge Flory declined to disqualify himself but said he would appoint another judge to hear the trial.

Dunker also indicated he might seek a change of venue and probably would request separate trials for the father and son.

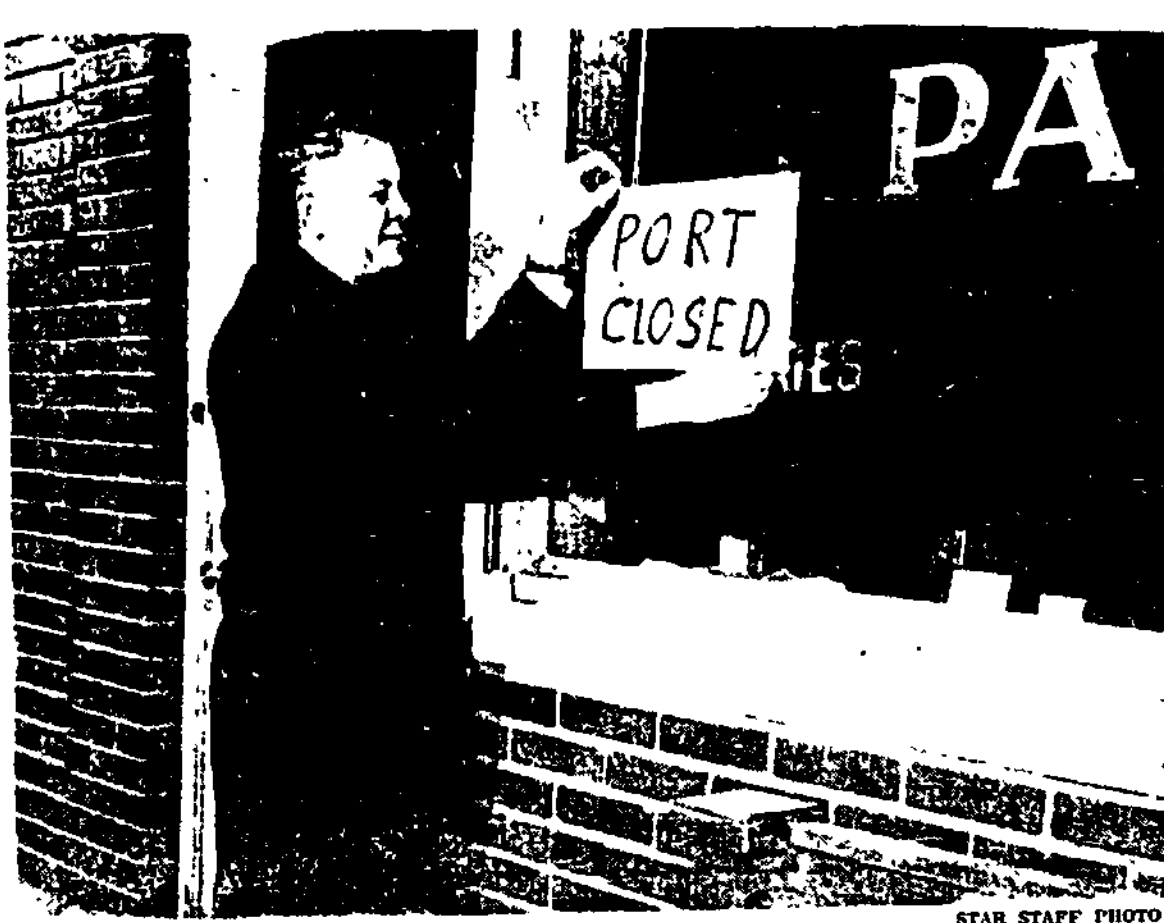

The child-stealing case stirred up considerable feeling in Columbus and for several days police officers maintained an around-the-clock guard at the church served by the Rev. Mr. Swiney, following demonstrations staged there.

Mrs. Brinkman contended the minister and his son were instrumental in the removal of her children by Brinkman.

The second case involved Lawrence D. Hassebrook, who pleaded innocent to a non-support charge in a case dating back to 1959. He also was a member of the Bible Baptist Church.

Hassebrook's bond of $2,000 also was continued and Judge Flory indicated that the trial probably would be held in March before the current term of court ends.

In this case he also rejected Dunker's request that he disqualify himself but said he would name another judge to hear the case. Dunker based his request on the fact Hassebrook had appeared before Judge Flory before.

IT'S CLOSED... Finigan posts the word.

Ports Of Entry Close Minus Formalities

By GENE BUDIG

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Omaha — There were no formalities.

State Agriculture Director Pearl Finigan arrived unannounced at the Dodge Street port of entry Friday.

He introduced himself, discussed the weather and proclaimed the port closed.

Forty-three others across the state will be shut down Saturday.

Finigan said the closings will result in the saving of "several hundred thousand dollars," earmarked for road and highway improvements.

"The ports simply weren't paying," he related. "And the Omaha Interstate would have required another six ports."

Outstate Nebraska would have needed four more, he said.

Finigan noted the 1963 Legislature passed laws to have the ports closed and gas tax money collected instead from out-of-state truckers through a mandatory reporting system.

The closings will eliminate some 150 state jobs.

We plan to hire 20 special agents to patrol the highways and check truckers," he said.

According to the chief, the transition went smoothly.

The trucking industry supported the change in the Legislature and Finigan said the only complaints have come from a few employees who lost their jobs.

He also said that under the new arrangement, truckers must obtain decals and a card to show they are filing monthly reports.

"They must file a $1,000 bond and can be fined that much for failure to comply," he informed.

Finigan said the new system, which has been operating successfully in other states, will not only save money, but also assure a freer flow of traffic.

Future Power Needs Slated For Attention

By the Associated Press

Representatives of the Nebraska Generation and Transmission Cooperative and the Nebraska Public Power system are slated to meet in Kearney Monday to lay the ground rules for negotiating future power needs of the 23 rural districts which make up the G&T.

Nebraska Power Review Board members have been invited to participate in the talks.

The present contracts provide that when the load of the rurals reaches 261,000 kilowatts they have the right to purchase their wholesale power elsewhere than from the NPPS.

The G&T estimates this point will be reached sometime in 1965, while the NPPS, composed of the Loup River, Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District, figures it will be a year later.

The NPPS, as required by the present contract, offered the rurals a plan for providing their future power needs but it was rejected in October.

However, Ralph Foreman of Columbus, general manager of the G&T, Friday said the rurals have authorized the G&T to negotiate some kind of agreement with the NPPS.

Foreman emphasized the G&T is not committed to purchase additional power needs from the NPPS and will look for other suppliers if it can't negotiate a satisfactory contract.

State Water Resources Director Dan Jones of Lincoln said the Power Review Board will be represented at the Kearney meeting. But he said board members will be there more as observers than as participants.

Marvel Baker Honored For Famed NU Service

More than 200 of the friends

Dr. Marvel Baker has accumulated during 39 years of service to his state and national honored the famed animal scientist at a dinner Friday night in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Dr. Baker, in 39 years as an active University of Nebraska staff member, earned a national reputation as a top scientist in both the beef cattle and swine industries.

Dr. Baker, professor emeritus of animal science since his official retirement last July, also was a top administrator as associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, first head of the NU mission that has been establishing a university in Turkey, and director of the University's Self-Survey.

Former Governor Robert Crosby was the main spokesman for Dr. Baker's non-professional friends at the dinner.

Ralston J. Graham, chairman of the Department of Information at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, spoke for friends on the university staff.

Dr. Keith E. Gregory, NU professor of animal science and research geneticist for the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, also extended thanks from Dr. Baker's many friends.

Dr. Robert M. Koch, chairman of the Department of Animal Science, presided.

Given High Tribute

Former Governor Crosby, an old friend from the days when Dr. Baker was animal husbandman at the North Platte Experiment Station said:

"Unquestionably he is the kind of citizen who ought to seek public office, but doesn't. Even so, Dr. Baker's brand of citizenship has been an inspiration to all his many friends, including myself."

"Only a few people are perceptive of current events in relation to the broad unfolding of human history," Crosby said. "Such a one is Dr. Baker... He is interested only as an observer, never showing any inclination to become a candidate or in any sense a 'politician'."

Graham, referring to many past and present tributes, pointed out that — "we find everyone thanking Dr. Baker for something tangible... for his research, for what he has done for the livestock industry and for some inspiration he has given them, for some influence he has had in their personal lives."

Along with tributes from leaders in education and the livestock industry, Graham quoted a letter from Robert C. Hamer, assistant director of the Agency for International Development in Turkey:

"During his years in Turkey, Dr. Baker became widely known for his contributions to educational development and his interest in the improvement of the country's agriculture."

"His greatest interest, however, centered around the people of the nation, particularly the young people dedicated to a career in education."

Long Hearing Is Likely For Baker-Curtis

Washington (P) — Sen Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said Friday the investigation of the outside business affairs of former Senate aide Robert G. Baker is likely to last longer than first anticipated.

Curtis, senior GOP member of the Senate Rules Committee which is conducting the investigation, told a reporter that hearings may last into May or June.

Baker, a protege of President Johnson when Johnson was Senate Democratic leader, resigned under fire Oct. 7 as secretary to the Senate Democratic majority.

The Senate promptly directed its Rules Committee to investigate whether Baker or other Senate employees had engaged in business activities that conflicted with their official duties, or involved other improprieties.

Sen. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., the committee chairman, originally expressed hope the inquiry could be completed in a couple of months, but so far only one public hearing has been held.

File Income Tax Early, Says Vinal

Omaha (UPI)—With the start of another federal income tax filing period, Richard P. Vinal, director of Internal Revenue for Nebraska, urges taxpayers to file early.

He advised that early filing enables the Internal Revenue Service to give better service to taxpayers.

Vinal said the Internal Revenue office in Omaha will be open to give assistance to taxpayers on each of the following Mondays during the filing period: Jan. 6, 13, 20, 27; Feb. 3, 10, 17, 24; March 2, 9, 16, 23, 30; April 6, 13, and Wednesday the 15th.

Baptist Church of Columbus, and his son, Loren Swiney, 22, were arraigned before District Judge R. D. Flory on child stealing charges stemming from the removal of four children of Mrs. Carol Brinkman of Columbus in August.

Mrs. Brinkman accused her husband, Harold Brinkman, 37, the minister and his son of child stealing. The children were subsequently returned.

Both the Swineys pleaded innocent and their bonds of $1,000 each were continued. Leonard Dunker of Lincoln, their attorney, asked Judge Flory to disqualify himself from the trial on the grounds that both had been before the third judicial district court previously. Judge Flory declined to disqualify himself but said he would appoint another judge to hear the trial.

Dunker also indicated he might seek a change of venue and probably would request separate trials for the father and son.

The child-stealing case stirred up considerable feeling in Columbus and for several days police officers maintained an around-the-clock guard at the church served by the Rev. Mr. Swiney, following demonstrations staged there.

Mrs. Brinkman contended the minister and his son were instrumental in the removal of her children by Brinkman.

The second case involved Lawrence D. Hassebrook, who pleaded innocent to a non-support charge in a case dating back to 1959. He also was a member of the Bible Baptist Church.

Hassebrook's bond of $2,000 also was continued and Judge Flory indicated that the trial probably would be held in March before the current term of court ends.

In this case he also rejected Dunker's request that he disqualify himself but said he would name another judge to hear the case. Dunker based his request on the fact Hassebrook had appeared before Judge Flory before.

Ports Of Entry Close Minus Formalities

By GENE BUDIG
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Omaha — There were no formalities.

State Agriculture Director Pearl Finigan arrived unannounced at the Dodge Street port of entry Friday.

He introduced himself, discussed the weather and proclaimed the port closed.

Forty-three others across the state will be shut down Saturday.

Finigan said the closings will result in the saving of "several hundred thousand dollars," earmarked for road and highway improvements. "The ports simply weren't paying," he related. "And the Omaha Interstate would have required another six ports."

Outstate Nebraska would

have needed four more, he said.

Finigan noted the 1963 Legislature passed laws to have the ports closed and gas tax money collected instead from out-of-state truckers through a mandatory reporting system.

The closings will eliminate some 150 state jobs. "We plan to hire 20 special agents to patrol the highways and check trucks," he said.

According to the ag chief, the transition went smoothly.

The trucking industry supported the change in the Legislature and Finigan said the only complaints have come from a few employees who lost their jobs.

He also said that under the new arrangement, truckers must obtain decals and a card to show they are filing monthly reports.

"They must file a $1,000 bond and can be fined that much for failure to comply," he informed.

Finigan said the new system, which has been operating successfully in other states, will not only save money, but also assure a freer flow of traffic.

Future Power Needs Slated For Attention

By the Associated Press

Representatives of the Nebraska Generation and Transmission Cooperative and the Nebraska Public Power system are slated to meet in Kearney Monday to lay the ground rules for negotiating future power needs of the 23 rural districts which make up the G&T.

Nebraska Power Review Board members have been invited to participate in the talks.

The present contracts provide that when the load of the rurals reaches 261,000 kilowatts they have the right to purchase their wholesale power elsewhere than from the NPPS.

The G&T estimates this point will be reached sometime in 1965, while the NPPS, composed of the Loup River Public Power District and the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District, figures it will be a year later.

The NPPS, as required by the present contract, offered the rurals a plan for providing their future power needs but it was rejected in October.

However, Ralph Foreman of Columbus, general manager of the G&T, Friday said the rurals have authorized the G&T to negotiate some kind of agreement with the NPPS.

Foreman emphasized the G&T is not committed to purchase additional power needs from the NPPS and will look for other suppliers if it can't negotiate a satisfactory contract.

State Water Resources Director Dan Jones of Lincoln said the Power Review Board will be represented at the Kearney meeting. But he said board members will be there more as observers than as participants.

Marvel Baker Honored For Famed NU Service

More than 200 of the friends Dr. Marvel Baker has accumulated during 39 years of service to his state and nation honored the famed animal scientist at a dinner Friday night in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Dr. Baker, in 39 years as an active University of Nebraska staff member, earned a national reputation as a top scientist in both the beef cattle and swine industries.

Dr. Baker, professor emeritus of animal science since his official retirement last July, also was a top administrator as associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, first head of the NU mission that has been establishing a university in Turkey, and director of the University's Self-Survey.

Former Governor Robert Crosby was the main spokesman for Dr. Baker's non-professional friends at the dinner.

Ralston J. Graham, chairman of the Department of Information at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, spoke for friends on the university staff.

Dr. Keith E. Gregory, NU professor of animal science and research geneticist for the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, also extended thanks from Dr. Baker's many friends.

Dr. Robert M. Koch, chairman of the Department of Animal Science, presided.

Given High Tribute

Former Governor Crosby, an old friend from the days when Dr. Baker was animal husbandman at the North Platte Experiment Station said:

"Unquestionably he is the kind of citizen who ought to seek public office, but doesn't. Even so, Dr. Baker's brand of citizenship has been an inspiration to all his many friends, including myself."

"Only a few people are perceptive of current events in relation to the broad unfolding of human history," Crosby said. "Such a one is Dr. Baker ... He is interested only as an observer, never showing any inclination to become a candidate or in any sense a 'politician'."

Graham, referring to many past and present tributes, pointed out that — "we find everyone thanking Dr. Baker for something tangible ... for his research, for what he has done for the livestock industry and for some inspiration he has given them, for some influence he has had in their personal lives."

Along with tributes from leaders in education and the livestock industry, Graham quoted a letter from Robert C. Hamer, assistant director of the Agency for International Development in Turkey:

"During his years in Turkey, Dr. Baker became widely known for his contributions to educational development and his interest in the improvement of the country's agriculture."

"His greatest interest, however, centered around the people of the nation, particularly the young people dedicated to a career in education."

Richards Asks $388,817 For Crash Injuries

Sidney (P) — A $388,817.82 damage suit has been filed in Cheyenne County District Court as a result of a highway accident near Lorenzo last May 18.

The action was brought by Ralph J. Richards in behalf of his son, Kent Richards, who is alleged to be permanently crippled as a result of the accident.

Defendants are Clarence A. Dorman, John C. Dorman and Richard B. Robinson. The petition alleges that Richards was a passenger in the Dorman car, driven by John Dorman, when Dorman and Robinson were drag-racing. The two vehicles collided.

The petition alleges that Richards' injuries were such that he will never be able to walk or sit upright without support.

Peace Always Looks Good

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

World peace is a cherished goal that will be in the aspirations of people of many lands until, if ever, it is finally achieved. But as long as a people may seek peace, they must maintain a cautious guard against the pitfalls that are a part of any agreement reached with a foreign power. This year has started with announcement by President Lyndon B. Johnson that he would launch a peace offensive in the months ahead.

This, it might be added, was reported as having been announced despite the fact that 1964 is an election year. The contrast drawn there by a wire service writer is not a particularly complimentary one to the nation and its statesmen. The implication is that a president would normally want conflict and turmoil in the world during an election year. This has been a common matter of speculation in the political life of the nation and a piece of speculation that we would do well to eliminate. It is ridiculous to think that the President of the United States would stoop to such low tactics for political gain.

The assumption is that in a time of crisis, the incumbent has an advantage since there is the old inclination of the people not to change horses in the middle of the stream. Theoretically, continuity is important during a crisis and thereby of benefit to the party in power.

Some of these assumptions and theories may be correct but it is a mistake to believe that they would be used as political tools. If we have today or have ever had in our past a president who would risk war to further his own political ambitions, then we are a rather pathetic nation. This is the kind of talk we should eliminate from the national scene.

Following the announcement by President Johnson, Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia has also proposed a new era of peace and called upon nations to renounce the use of force in settlement of border disputes. Significantly, he said that this is the only way in which the world will settle the ultimate reunification of such divided nations as Viet Nam and Germany. That is significant because it gives recognition to the proposition of reunification, a matter that the Kremlin has not been too clear on in recent years. Of course, Moscow still wants reunification on communist terms but at least the Reds have not yet settled for a permanent division of nations and a permanent point of conflict between East and West.

Newton's Day

If you never had a taste for mathematics and physics this morning's announcement will bring on a tinge of pain.

This is the birth anniversary of Sir Isaac Newton who started out in 1642, grew up and discovered his law of gravity. That part was all right. But he loaded the world up with a lot of higher mathematics. People can catch a falling apple with facility, which they could do before his time. But catching his integral calculus is another matter.

To most of us ungraced with computer minds there is some satisfaction in Newton's ultimate downfall. His mathematics was good enough for mundane things, but when it came down to such infinitely small computations regarding at-

Despite the hopes of Johnson and the expressions of Khrushchev, peace is still just a cherished dream and a long way from fulfillment. To begin with, it is doubtful that the U.S. and Russia alone could agree in the very near future upon terms for the renunciation of the use of force in the settlement of disputes. This will always be a difficult area in which to find agreement because no nation is willing to give up its sovereignty—its right to retaliate in the face of provocation. And seldom can two nations at odds agree as to what constitutes provocation against the other. Japan considered it provocation in 1941 when the United States would not accede to her demands for settlement of Asiatic disputes.

Today, one wonders what, if anything, Russia might consider provocation against the United States on the part of Cuba. Cuban subversion and intervention in the affairs of other Latin American countries could become a serious provocation to the United States but Russia would not view it as such. Any agreement against the use of force could and probably would break down at any such point as that.

Such a situation, of course, is one over which neither Russia or the United States has direct control—another point of difficulty in any matter of arms control. The U.S. and Russia might agree to the limitation of the use of force, but what is to be done in regard to the other nations of the world?

It is not likely that U.S. allies would provoke open warfare but it is not at all impossible. It is very possible indeed that Communist China might bring on war with her declared policy of aggression against democracy. The United States could never agree to the elimination of the use of arms unless there was some assurance that such agreement would cover all nations. Thus, we are obviously a very long way from that day when we can say that war is not only improbable, but impractical and impossible. We are a long way from what Premier Khrushchev has suggested.

The best we can hope for in the current state of international affairs is some reduction of arms and limited agreements over territorial disputes. It simply is not within the power of Russia and the United States to determine the settlement of territorial disputes that could erupt between many nations of the world.

oms and infinitely large ones involving the universe its equations got the bends. And now we have quantum physics which is so far beyond most of us that no pain is felt.

Only a few were hurt. One recalls the comment of former Nebraska Chancellor Reuben E. Gustafson who stood by when fellow scientists started the first atomic pile cooking in the Argonne laboratory at the University of Chicago. He said at that moment almost all the science he had learned fell to the floor, mostly useless.

We of lesser minds cannot recall that any of us lost our educations in a shorter time than two years after graduation. Sometimes it pays not to know too much.

We're Getting Hurt

Nebraska financial centers are talking about the impressive departure of investment capital from the state as a result of new legislation calculated to strengthen intangible tax procedures.

The walkout was described as taking place between the maturing of the legislation last fall and January 1. No figures have been given, but estimates place the amount as considerable—enough to affect seriously the state's growth potential.

Apparently there is no statutory means for preventing investment capital from seeking advantageous locations, and probably there is no practical means to do so either. But since capital prefers to depart rather than enter into a contest for a more sensible intangible tax law, the problem of what to do about the situation devolves on the people of Nebraska generally as they act in the future through their elected representatives.

In respect to growth as a financial center Nebraska must face the fact that it has contrived a law which penalizes domestic institutions and favors competition residing elsewhere especially where taxes dwell more lightly against investment portfolios. This, of course, is antithetical.

The law also suggests the departure of security holding individuals, depleting both the state population and the capital needed to develop Nebraska's resources.

If there was an argument that tax forgiveness for domestic stock would cause the state to burgeon with new growth, the years have failed to support it.

There are few who would say that intangibles should escape taxation. But most will agree that a bad law is worse than no law, which seems to be the fix we are in.

Editorial Of The Day

Johnson's Speech Writer

From The Des Moines Register
The fact that Theodore C. Sorensen, who wrote speeches for the late President Kennedy, is now writing them for President Johnson will not dissuade many persons. There is only the faintest pretense that a president writes all his own utterances any more. What is important is that the president wrote the words but that he believes the thoughts they express

Sorensen is a good speech writer and in remaining with Johnson during the transition period he is being loyal. The speeches President Johnson has been delivering have been good ones, which have stirred praise.

There is, however, something about these speeches that isn't quite characteristic. Ted Sorensen wrote speeches that sounded like President Kennedy. They were eloquent speeches with a literary quality. They sound a little odd coming from President Johnson, a practical man who usually speaks colloquially, with commonplace references and with an economy of words. When he has something to say he usually just up and says it.

It sounds more like Lyndon Johnson when he makes the off-hand comment that F.D.K. was "the ablest man we ever had in this town" and that Eisenhower was "a wonderful man to work under." That sounds like the same man who said before the 1960 Democratic convention that soon "the dark horses will be out to pasture" and that a candidate shouldn't be expected to "pass a religious blood test." That is quite a different style from that of a speech which deliberately stirs faint echoes of the Gettysburg Address.

It takes time and the experience of working together to develop the happy union of a catcher and pitcher in baseball, a good passing combination in football and a team of writer and speaker who use the same kind of phrases. It will come in time because it is more easy, natural and convincing for a man to talk in his own style than in that of someone else's.

Benson Indicates Rebellion Welcome

WASHINGTON—Ezra Taft Benson, who presided over the Agriculture Department for eight long years under Eisenhower, has departed for a long stay in Europe after a farewell speech hinting that the time has come for Americans to overthrow their government.

Free citizens, Benson said, in an amazing statement, should become "conspirators against established government."

The speech climaxed three years of unusual behavior for Benson, a period during which he embarrassed the man who so steadfastly supported him, Dwight D. Eisenhower; also embarrassed the head of the Mormon Church, President David O. McKay, and his fellow apostles in the church.

During his eight years as head of the Agriculture Department, Benson kept Eisenhower in constant hot water with farmers by his inept policies; yet he refused to drop him. Since his retirement, Benson has praised the man who says Eisenhower was a dedicated agent of communism—Robert Welch; while Reed Benson, Ezra's son, has become a paid organizer for Welch's John Birch Society.

Benson has become so extreme in his views that the Mormon church, of which he is one of the twelve apostles, has quietly transferred him abroad to head the church's European mission. It was at a "patriotic" rally at Logan, Utah, that the ex-secretary of agriculture made his inflammatory remarks hinting at revolution.

Communism is taking over the United States "by a process so gradual and insidious . . ." said Benson, "that they (the American people) can no longer resist the communist conspiracy as free citizens but can resist the communist tyranny only by themselves becoming conspirators against established government."

Benson went on to brand the civil rights bill, however, as "part of the pattern of the communist take-over of America."

"The whole slogan of 'civil rights' as used to make trouble in the South today," he declared, "is an exact parallel to the slogan of 'agrarian reform' which they (the Reds) used in China."

It was while Benson was in the cabinet that President Eisenhower sent U.S. troops to Little Rock to enforce civil rights.

As Secretary of Agriculture, Benson toured Russia, Poland, and various other communist countries seeking to promote the sale of U.S. farm products behind the Iron Curtain. Yet in his farewell speech he denounced the sale of wheat to Russia as a scheme to strengthen communism.

On Nov. 9, 1952, Benson had proclaimed: "I would like a liberalization of our national policy regarding trading with Iron Curtain countries. Personally, I would hope we would have as much freedom as possible to get rid of our surpluses." Copyright, 1964, by Bell-McClure Synd.

Elderly Congress Falling Behind?

WASHINGTON — From a population standpoint, the seniority system which results in a slow-down Congress runs squarely across the stream of American destiny. By July 1, 1963, the median age of Americans had dropped to 28.5, and it is still dropping as the World War II babies marry and start their own families.

This means that a small and lessening fraction of Americans now alive ever saw Franklin D. Roosevelt in the flesh, much less Herbert Hoover, or can remember social and economic conditions greatly different from those which now prevail. The great depression and the New Deal alike are only words which young voters have to be taught to hate.

John F. Kennedy was deeply interested in matters of this kind, and the presidential commission which recommended that the states lower the voting age from 21 to 18 reflected his musings.

It was natural that he should be interested in view of the great appeal of the Kennedys for young people. He also got very tired of the prejudices and rigidity of so many of his congressional seniors.

The voting commission handed its report to President Johnson, who was polite and noncommittal. With Congress in its present mood, only he can give it life, if it is to have any.

To date four states have lowered the voting age from 21 to 18 in Georgia and Kentucky, to 19 in Alaska and to 20 in Hawaii. The East and Midwest are totally unrepresented in the list, though competing ideologies are.

Perhaps a lowered voting age is not the solution for attracting young Americans to politics and increasing their voting awareness. But it is noticeable that the principal scoffers tend to be elderly.

These are other reminders that Congress is falling behind the American processions. For the first time, Time Magazine's man of the year is an American Negro, Martin Luther King Jr. King is presented as an important man and as the symbol of a Negro revolution "which forced the nation to take stock of itself."

There are many young men and women, incidentally, among the Negro and professional middle class which is sketched in the article. It may not discourage the Southern senators, who still plan a civil rights filibuster, but it underscores how high a political price will attach to support of them by colleagues outside the South.

Changes in population patterns are inevitably reflected in national politics. The 1930 census showed why reapportionment could no longer be contained within narrow judicial interpretations of the voting rights of citizens. It all but ordered presidential candidates to look to the big states for victory.

Richard M. Scammon, director of the Bureau Of The Census, is not prepared to say what the distinctive contribution of the 1970 census will be to American politics. He is sure it will be an important one and that a good formula for political success would be to anticipate it wherever possible.

ON TARGET

By BETTY PERSON

We've been paying more than a little attention lately to the volume of work crossing the desk of Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer. It's rather formidable.

The list of queries put to the attorney general in recent months is long, and we shall not attempt to note them all — just some highlights to show the scope of the questions.

A list of 50 questions has been submitted by the firm conducting a state accounting study to see whether the change to an automated accounting system can be made prior to a constitutional amendment and without revising some existing laws.

The Normal Board wants to know if the shell of a building would constitute the first unit of a building.

The Educational Television Commission has made the decision concerning location of the first two ETV towers, and has reaffirmed that decision, but has asked the attorney general if its decision was right.

The Legislature in its recent special session, in several ways, asked the attorney general to help it write laws on time sales matters.

Our purpose in calling attention to this situation is not to criticize as such, but to try to understand why it has happened.

Before proceeding further, we want to make it abundantly clear that we know the attorney general very properly should be asked to render opinions on important questions of constitutionality, and for interpretations of laws on major matters. That's part of his job.

We also want to say emphatically that we feel the fate of the state is very safe in the capable hands of Clarence Meyer. He's an astute lawyer, a stickler for the letter of the law, and a gentleman of unquestionable integrity.

But we think he should not have to be asked questions on relatively minor matters which should have been settled while the laws were being written, he should not be asked to determine policy in lawmaking, and he should not be asked virtually to shoulder the responsibility of making decisions which properly belong on other executives' shoulders.

Why has it happened? Many will say it's because people have lost faith in the Legislature and the laws it passes — they're afraid to take a law at face value anymore. But that's just looking for someone to blame, rather than trying to find the reason.

It cannot be denied that several errors were committed by the 1963 Legislature. But rather than engaging in wholesale condemnation of the lawmaking body, let's try to understand what problems it faces.

First of all, legislators are human beings and as such, are not infallible. Still we seem to demand infallibility. If that's what we want, and, of course, it's to be desired, then should we not also give them the tools with which to work to increase the opportunity for perfection?

Nebraska's comparatively small handful of lawmakers — an overwhelming majority of whom have no legal training — today are asked to write letter-perfect laws dealing with a vast number of problems. They had to consider more than 800 proposed laws dealing with widely diversified matters in the 1963 session. That's a staggering load.

And they made some mistakes. We're not trying to minimize the importance of those errors, but it is not only uncharitable, it's just plain wrong to suggest that because they made mistakes they should be judged as incapable and their every act automatically suspect.

Since we don't have a Legislature constituted solely of trained lawyers, should it not at least have a legal staff which could provide the technical assistance necessary to develop proper laws? This would leave the senators free to make policy decisions, which, after all, is their primary purpose.

We devoutly hope that the 1965 Legislature will seriously consider employing some competent attorneys to serve as legal counsel for at least the major standing committees. Such assistance could add immeasurably to solving complicated legal issues while laws are being developed, rather than having to try to rectify errors later.

It also must be noted that some of the questions directed to the attorney general have resulted from a marked animosity between some executive agencies and the Legislature.

Every session of the Legislature has made mistakes, but there was something less than reluctance on the part of some agencies in recent months to have it put on the line that the lawmakers had pulled some boners.

We also want to state it plainly that we think many of those agencies had a very legitimate gripe, and there was confusion, and they do have to know exactly what they are legally empowered to do.

It can only be hoped that the future will bring a greater degree of effort from both branches of government to try to understand each other's problems while the issues are being settled, rather than after the Legislature has adjourned.

It is also hoped that executive agencies will be firm in their resolve to accept the responsibilities with which they are charged.

Snowbound

Ansley, Neb.

Long ago in the winter-time we had a blizzard and shut off from the rest of the world, it was a wonderful feeling to be alone with one's own family.

We would have one of those old-fashioned breakfasts consisting of baking powder biscuits, fresh fried country meat and eggs.

Since we were snow-bound and could not attend school, we all visited and did little chores around the house, and there was great enjoyment being alone together and just doing this or that.

Mark Old Trails

Lincoln, Neb.

The selection of ancient ground near Auburn for a new state park is an indication that Nebraskans are becoming aware of history in greater depth.

The new state land contains the remnants of the old village of St. De Roin — a special preserve for Indian halfbreeds provided by an American treaty written not long after this land passed to the United States by the Louisiana Purchase.

The passing generations have forgotten that the name St. De Roin was a big one out here in pre-territorial history. Nebraska Indians are still aware of it. An important southeastern Nebraska trail bore the name.

That brings up the subject of trails. Pre-settlement Nebraska was a land of trails older by far than the Oregon and Mormon trails. We still have, in the historical society, a good record of them. A few Nebraskans who are expert in trail detection say that to the initiated they are still identifiable if one learns what to look for.

This suggests a special centennial activity — the re-discovery and careful marking of all the old trails. We have been remiss in this part of our history. We should get to the job before it is too late.

Lord's Prayer

Bennet, Neb.

How many who repeat the Lord's Prayer realize that it is being prayed for others also and not just for themselves? The beginning of the year is an appropriate time to avoid the tendency to be self-centered while praying.

Perhaps these reminders will help. You cannot pray the Lord's Prayer and even once say "I." You cannot pray the Lord's Prayer and even once say "my." Nor can you pray the Lord's Prayer and not pray for another, for when you ask for daily bread, you must include your brother. For others are included in each and every plea. From the beginning to the end of it, it does not once say "me."

Miracle Alloys

Newark, N.J.

Explorers in the realm of metalics in the last century have done well in compounding alloys that perform according to our needs and desires. They came up with a nickel-iron mixture alloy that is called, appropriately, "invar" which does not vary appreciably in sorts of indoor temperatures. Yet nickel and iron do vary when apart.

Then there is the famous Woods metal, which solidifies from a liquid state with scarcely a change. It is good for the hosts of metal pattern-makers who need to reproduce their intricate wood patterns in metal. A sister alloy, Rose's metal, is more stable and does not melt as easily, but does melt when dipped into boiling water.

The discoveries of the alloys must have had patience and faith that somehow the elements in the periodic scales and divisions would come to heed the demands of man for "impossible" things.

Then comes nichrome, used for heating elements. The wonder here is that it gets hot out in the open — not covered with a bulb — not allowed to get to a flame-hot point. It lasts long. Type metal expands when it sets in the mold or under the latter's resistance. It does not shrink like other lead combinations. And on and on.

One wonders where all this started.

Bikinis On Mature Women—Nothing To Worry About

By ROBERT PETERSON

Q. "My parents retired and moved to Florida where they bought a house with a swimming pool. When we brought the grandchildren down for a surprise visit we found mother entertaining her bridge club with a swim party, and everyone of these overweight matrons was wearing a bikini. It was a shocking sight, believe me, and I'd just like to know what's happened to senior standards?"

A. Sometimes modern elders are less conservative than youngsters. We middle-agers hasten to conform to the standards of our home community for fear of being ostracized. But older people who move to new areas often feel a sense of emancipation. They are more inclined to do what comes naturally, since they are no longer tied to the conventions and traditions of the old hometown. Take it in your stride. If your mother and her pals don't do anything worse than wear bikinis you don't have much to worry about.

Q. "I immigrated to the U.S. from Switzerland 10 years ago, got married, and have a fine family. There's nothing I'd like more than to have my parents, who are in good health, come visit us. But, although I've offered to send them tickets, they refuse to fly. And being in their late 70's they think they're too old to travel to the coast and come by ship. What can I do?"

A. You must insist that they come by air. Send them the tickets, make specific reservations, and then get a family friend over there to use his powers of persuasion. If this doesn't work, you may have to go over yourself and take them by the hand. You should feel justified in prodding them because jet planes make travel incredibly easy. It's just plain wrong for elders to deny themselves the experience of flight.

2. "Is there anything to the theory that we all have a fixed fund of energy, and that if we live a high-paced, strenuous life we'll use up the fund and die sooner than if we live at a slow, leisurely pace?"

A. This theory has been largely discredited. Most researchers today maintain that the more we use our muscles and faculties, the stronger they become, the greater our resistance to deterioration, and the longer we live. At the same time they caution against overdoing. As we grow older and sense a diminution in our vigor and energy, we should be careful to modify activities correspondingly.

Q. "My husband constantly embarrasses me with his obsession of being paid for everything he does for people. When a woman asked

Dutch Coast Ship Sinks

Rotterdam (AP)—The 500-ton Dutch coastal ship Looersgracht sank after a collision with the South African ship Langkloof in the river Scheldt. Eight survivors were picked up by the Dutch coastal vessel Seabreeze, radio stations reported. They were taking to Flushing.

The Langkloof was described by Scheveningen radio as a new ship of 6,899 tons.

him to help her change a tire he said it would cost her two dollars. When a neighbor ran out of gas my husband gave him a two gallon can and said that would be 80 cents. And instead of giving way with excess tomatoes last summer, he peddled them to every house in the block. It wouldn't be so bad if we were poor, but we've got plenty."

A. Some people are just plain penurious in dealing with their fellow man. I think you should be firm in trying to make him more charitable in dealing with others. But if the habit is long-standing you'll probably have trouble changing him.

G.I. Sunday Closing Law Ruled Unconstitutional

The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday declared the Grand Island Sunday closing ordinance unconstitutional.

The court held the ordinance is class legislation, which is prohibited by state law.

Skag-Way Department Stores, Inc., of Grand Island appealed a decision of the Hall County District Court holding the ordinance constitutional. The high court reversed the district court.

The ordinance allows 11 exceptions and in this regard is somewhat similar to the state Sunday closing law enacted by the 1963 Legislature. A suit testing the constitutionality of the state law is currently pending.

The Supreme Court opinion, written by Associate Justice Fred W. Messmore, said: "A legislative body may make a reasonable classification of persons, corporations and property for purposes of legislation concerning them, but the classification must rest upon real differences in situation and circumstances surrounding the members of the class, relative to the subject of the legislation which render appropriate its enactment."

This section of the opinion may have sounded the death knell for the state Sunday closing law, which has some 70 exceptions.

"Exceptions to a general Sunday closing ordinance must, if the ordinance is to be valid, Messmore wrote, 'bear some relation to the public health, safety, morale or general welfare.'"

The opinion said a city ordinance providing for Sunday closing cannot prohibit that which is harmless in itself.

The Grand Island ordinance allowed the following exceptions:

- gasoline, oil, greases and other maintenance items used in servicing motor vehicles, boats and aircraft.

- newspapers, books and periodicals and radio and television broadcasts.

- beverages and refreshments.

- tobacco, cigars and cigarettes.

- candles and confections.

- drugs and medicines, hygienic and sick room supplies.

- travel tickets, fares and trip insurance.

- postage, telegrams, cablegrams, telephone or other public utilities' commodities.

- admissions to, and fees charged at places of amusement, entertainment and recreation.

- meals prepared and served for immediate consumption.

- and natural and artificial ice.

Skag-Way had argued that the ordinance allows the sale of a can of beer on Sunday but not a glass of orange juice.

The high court said "it is readily apparent" the some of the exceptions are "clearly based on necessity." But it added:

"Even bearing in mind the rule that the classification upon which a Sunday closing law is based is within the discretion of the legislative branch and hence will be upheld unless clearly arbitrary, it is difficult to conceive of a fair reason for some of the items excepted."

The court said the Grand Island closing ordinance does not accomplish the "purpose it purports to effect."

Ruling On ETV Tower Expected

The secretary of the Nebraska Educational Television Commission said Friday he expects the Federal Aviation Agency to rule by the end of this month whether the commission can erect a proposed ETV transmitter at Mead.

Jack McBride, station manager of the University of Nebraska ETV station in Lincoln, KUON-TV, said the FAA will have the final say on the tower. State Aeronautics Director James Sandstedt recently opined the proposed 1,152-foot tower might be a hazard to air traffic because Mead is a junction for a number of airlines flying across the state and private planes for position checks.

McBride said the ETV Commission at its meeting here Wednesday will discuss the matter, but emphasized it will have to wait for the FAA decision before doing anything.

McBride said he doubts the commission would drastically revise its plans even if the FAA turns down the planned Mead tower.

He said the commission would probably compromise with a shorter tower or by moving it to another location near Mead which would be acceptable to the FAA.

The commission has been under fire from Omaha interests who contend the proposed tower will not transmit satisfactory pictures to some low-lying areas in Douglas County because of the topography.

Officials there want an ETV originating station activated in Omaha first but the commission has postponed this for at least two years although one is expected to be erected eventually.

Hutton Services Slated Saturday

Norfolk — Services will be held Saturday afternoon for Lynn D. Hutton Sr., 66, Norfolk attorney.

He suffered a heart attack and died Wednesday while watching the Nebraska-Auburn football game on television.

Services will be at 2 p.m. at the First Methodist Church. Burial will be at Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Hutton served by appointment as a state senator in 1944.

Burney Names Two To Campaign Staff

Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney of Hartington, announced candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, said Friday he has appointed Watsa banker N. B. (Nobby) Tiemann as his statewide finance director.

Tiemann is president of the Commercial State Bank at Wausa.

Burney also named Sidney Sweet of the Fidelity Title Insurance Co. of Lincoln as his Lancaster County campaign director.

Burney said he plans to start his active campaign for the GOP nomination soon.

Parkview's Legality Upheld

The Nebraska Supreme Court Friday upheld the legality of a Nebraska hamlet located near Grand Island in Hall County.

The court said Hall County District Court ruled correctly in holding the village of Parkview a legal entity.

The district court had held constitutional the 1943 state law providing for incorporation of villages in Nebraska.

But Robert L. Kriz, who had part of his land annexed by the formation of Parkview in the Fall of 1961, contended the 1943 state law permitting petitioners for incorporation to suggest boundaries of a proposed village was unconstitutional. He alleged the formation of the village was illegal.

Petitions had been signed by 182 of the 322 taxable residents in the village area requesting formation of the village.

The Supreme Court held the 1943 law "in not an unlawful delegation of legislative power or a taking of property without due process of law."

In other ruling Friday the court:

—Affirmed a Saline County District Court decision ruling in favor of Saline County and against Charles J. Slahut.

Slahut had initiated the district court action, seeking to recover personal and property damages suffered when a Saline County bridge he was driving over collapsed. He alleged negligence on the part of the county.

But a district court jury returned a verdict for the county on its counterclaim in the amount of $2,500.

Reversed with directions a Scotts Bluff County District Court habeas corpus decision resulting in the freedom of Martin N. Brito.

Brito had been charged with non-support, but he contended he was being illegally detained in Scotts Bluff County jail because he was a resident of Texas at the time he was accused of having defaulted in support.

The district court ordered Brito freed. However, the high court said although Brito was a resident of Texas, his divorced wife and children were residents of Nebraska at the time and therefore, he was not being held in jail illegally.

The high court ordered Brito returned to the county jail.

—Affirmed a Buffalo County District Court insurance liability ruling in favor of the Capital Mutual Insurance Company and against Edwin Paul Garreits.

The purpose of the action, initiated by Garreits, was to determine the liability of the insurance firm on an insurance policy carried by Garreits.

The bidding:
South West North East
2NT Pass 3NT Pass

Opening lead — jack of spades.

Let's say you have the East hand and are defending three notrump. West leads the jack of spades and declarer wins it with the queen and plays the king of diamonds, your partner following with the eight. How would you defend the hand?

Of course, you don't see the declarer's cards, but, just the same, you can pretty much tell what he has. He opened the bidding with two notrump, showing 22 to 24 points, and he is therefore bound to have the A-K-Q of spades, the A-K of hearts, the K-J of diamonds and the queen of clubs. Those are the only high cards missing, and they come to exactly 22 points.

The first problem is whether to take the king of diamonds. West's eight indicates either a singleton, which means the contract cannot be defeated, or a doubleton, which means that declarer started with K-J-x. In either case, it does not much matter whether you win the trick now or later, so let's assume you take the king with the ace.

The next problem is what to return. If you make the neutral return of the queen of hearts or a spade, it is obvious that South will wind up with at least nine tricks, since he will next force out the queen of diamonds and eventually score three spades, two hearts, three diamonds and a club.

So what you do to prevent this from happening is return the king of clubs. You don't know whether this play will defeat the contract, but you do know that no other play has a chance of stopping three notrump.

As it happens, the king of clubs return defeats the contract. It turns out that partner has the vital ten of clubs, and since you refuse to take the jack of diamonds on the next diamond lead, South is unable to collect more than eight tricks. Killing dummies only entry by sacrificing the king of clubs proves to be the decisive play.

Meeting Changed

The meeting of the Retired Public School Employees of Lancaster County will be held Monday morning at the Hotel Cornhusker, not the YWCA as previously scheduled.

The meeting will begin at 10 o'clock.

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE

There are still a few Christmas cookies around the house, or at least their crumbs, and a bit of tinsel here and there that dropped off the tree as it was leaving the honored place in the living room, but for the most part, things are settling down to the Normal Pattern.

It seems, however, that in Country Club Terrace, the Normal Pattern is every bit as much fun as the holiday pace, with parties, bridge games, and get-togethers for the future.

But don't discount the fun that everyone had during Christmas and New Year's, especially at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Thompson. For Christmas, they were a dinner host and hostess at their home, and guests included Mr. and Mrs. David Thompson of Omaha; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ferrell, all of Lincoln. Last Monday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson entertained several friends at an informal get-together. Highlight of the evening was a film about South America, shown by the Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Molzahn, who have traveled in many of the countries.

Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Milo Tegley and their children, Tom and Rosalie; Mrs. Fred Frickel, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Ferrell.

Off to Superior for Christmas went Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hannegan and their sons, David and Tommy. Their destination was the home of Mr. Hannegan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hannegan.

We're wondering if Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Price, Jr. might have gotten seven leagu boots for Christmas what with all the traveling they've been doing.

For Christmas, Mr. Price's mother, Mrs. Marvin Price of Sioux City, Iowa, was in Lincoln, and when she returned home, her grandson Terry went with her for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Price drove up to Sioux City Sunday afternoon with their other two children, Marilyn-Rae and Shawn, and visited friends in the area. They also went to Lawton, Iowa, and the home of Mrs. Price's father, K. S. Smith; then on to Battle Creek, Iowa, and a Sunday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peterson. Mr. and Mrs. Price and their three children returned to their Country Club Terrace home Sunday evening.

KESSLER HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest L. Hatheway spent the Christmas holidays in Paxton, visiting at the home of Mrs. Hatheway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartman.

Christmas dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Karabotsos was celebrated with Mr. Karabotsos' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Karabotsos, and his sister Sophia, of Fairbury.

KIMBERLY HEIGHTS

Visitors from Waterloo, Iowa, were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hergenrader on Christmas Day. They were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Krantz and their children, Dennis, Jim, David, and Connie Lynn. Mr. and Mrs. Krantz and family left for their home Friday morning.

Special guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Abbott is their son, Stephen Abbott, who is home from the Conception Seminary in Conception, Mo.

Steve, who arrived shortly before Christmas, will be leaving for the seminary on Jan. 5.

Dear Abby

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: A few weeks ago I ran this letter in my column:

Dear Abby: Happiness is knowing your parents won't almost kill you if you come home a little late. Happiness is having your own bedroom. Happiness is having parents who trust you. Happiness is getting the telephone call you've been praying for. Happiness is getting good grades and making your parents proud of you. Happiness is being included in the popular circle. Happiness is having parents who don't fight. Happiness is knowing you are as well dressed as anybody. Happiness is something I don't have.

FIFTEEN AND UNHAPPY I received hundreds of letters from readers who wrote to comment. Here are a few:

DEAR FIFTEEN AND UNHAPPY: Happiness is coming home on time so your parents won't worry. Happiness is having someone to share a bedroom with. Happiness is proving to your parents that you can be trusted. Happiness is realizing that sometimes you're lucky you don't get what you pray for because it isn't always good for you. Happiness is including someone who is lonely and unpopular in your circle. Happiness is in having two parents who haven't already fought it out in the divorce court. Happiness is keeping the clothes you have neat and clean and not worrying about whether somebody else is "better-dressed." Happiness is not something you get. It's something you give.

FIFTEEN AND HAPPY in Richmond, Va.

DEAR FIFTEEN AND UNHAPPY: Unhappiness is having to punish your 15-year-old for coming home late because if he didn't he'd keep coming home later and later. Unhappiness is listening to your son gripe about having to share a room with his brother when he should be old enough to understand that all parents aren't financially able to provide each child with his own bedroom. Unhappiness is knowing that your 15-year-old can't be trusted. Unhappiness is finding out that the reason your son's grades are poor is because he cut classes, came unprepared for tests and never did his homework. Unhappiness is in knowing that the "popular circle" your son runs with will call him "chicken" if he doesn't do what they do, regardless. Unhappiness is knowing that your son will be well-dressed only if you hang up his clothes, shine his shoes and see that he changes his socks, and underwear. Unhappiness is something we have brought on ourselves because we loved our son so much we couldn't say NO to him.

UNHAPPY PARENTS Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Judges Ban Blackface Due To Possible Race Violence

Philadelphia (UPI) — A three-judge panel Friday granted an injunction against the use of blackface makeup in Saturday's Mummers Parade because of the possibility of racial violence.

The court had listened to testimony that "active recruiting" was under way in the Harlem section of New York City to break up the annual parade.

The injunction was issued by Judge Eugene V. Alessandrini, head of the panel, who said there was "a clear and present danger of violence and possible bloodshed to onlookers and bystanders because of increasing racial threats."

'Roof Missiles'

Police Commissioner Howard R. Leary said he had been informed by New York police that Negroes in Harlem were being urged to come here. He said there was a possibility of "missiles being thrown from rooftops because that is the way the New Yorkers operate."

Leary told Alessandrini that an injunction prohibiting blackface and halting any demonstrations in connection with the parade would "restrain some persons and lessen the potential" of violence.

In another development, the federal court rejected a request by Cecil Moore, chairman of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), to bar the telecast of the parade. Moore then appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The Rev. Henry H. Nichols, head of the Philadelphia Council of Churches and one of three persons petitioning for the injunction, told the court there would be "rioting along the route of the parade."

He said he had learned that "forces which cannot be controlled by anyone" were planning to come here for the 64th annual Mummers Parade. It had been scheduled for New Year's Day but was postponed until Saturday because of bad weather.

'Strengthen'

Leary said police power to bring any rioters directly into court Saturday would "strengthen our arm."

Burton A. Gordin, acting director of Philadelphia's commission on human relations, said, "Temper of the Negroes in common is that when blackface comes down Broad St., there will be bloodshed."

Alessandrini noted that the same court had refused a similar request earlier this week to bar the blackface but said, "The facts presented today are of an entirely different facet."

The order restrained four comic clubs from "marching or permitting anyone to march using blackface" in the parade.

The order came after witnesses before Judges Alessandrini, Leo Weinrott and Theodore Reimel had testified that there would be "bloodshed" and "violence" if the injunction against the blackface and threatened demonstrations against its use was not issued.

Threats

The Congress of Racial Equality and the Committee for Freedom Now had threatened demonstrations if the blackface was used by marchers.

The NAACP was rejected last Tuesday in a bid to bar blackface. The court noted at that time that there was no law against such makeup.

Gordin said the parade will go through some sections of south Philadelphia which are predominantly Negro and that "someone will try to demonstrate his deep resentment."

"It is my considered judgment under existing conditions the potential for race conflict is very real," he added.

Gordin said sources told him that "missiles will be thrown from rooftops, persons will be prepared to protest with weapons and others will impede (the parade) with their bodies."

Fisher To Start Untying Ties Binding Him To Liz

Puerto Vallarta, Mexico (AP) — Singer Eddie Fisher is expected to begin divorce proceedings against Elizabeth Taylor here Saturday or Monday at the latest, a Mexican judge said Friday.

The judge, Arcadio Estrada Quinones, is the one who granted a divorce last month to Richard Burton's wife, Sybil. Burton expects to marry Miss Taylor as soon as she is divorced.

The judge made his prediction as legal counselors for Fisher and Miss Taylor started to assemble at this former fishing village which has become a crowded winter resort.

Not Expected

Fisher himself is not expected to come here. Mrs. Burton didn't get her divorce.

If things go as expected, the way will be clear for Burton and Miss Taylor to marry about mid-January.

They continued in seclusion in Burton's home, Casa Kimberly.

Burton's lawyer, Aaron Froese, flew here Thursday from Mexico City. He immediately went inside the Kimberly house, where he is staying as a guest, declining to comment.

Fisher's lawyer was expected to arrive momentarily from Los Angeles, and his Mexican colleague, Francisco Lopez Figueroa, who represents both Burton and Miss Taylor, also was expected.

To Coach Lawyers

Judge Estrada, who last month visited Los Angeles reportedly to coach the Fisher and Taylor lawyers on Mexican legal proceedings, refused to comment further on the impending suit.

He said, however, the couple will not marry in Puerto Vallarta once the divorce is completed, although there are no legal obstacles to that.

"My impression is they will go to Mexico City or Acapulco for their marriage although I'm sure the mayor of Puerto Vallarta would gladly marry them if they wished," Estrada said.

Deer Stalkers Couldn't Quite Believe Eyes

Wenatchee, Wash. (AP) — Imagine stalking through the woods, your rifle ready, your eyes peeled, your ears twitching for the slightest sound—and having a deer walk right up and nuzzle your trouser leg?

That's exactly what happened to Robert Conner of Wenatchee and his sons, Bob Jr. and John.

"We could hardly believe our eyes," said Conner. "We all had guns but he wasn't afraid. He walked up and started nibbling at Bob's trousers!"

They fed the little deer some salt and candy. Then they couldn't get rid of him. Rather than let him fall prey to hunters, the Conners decided to bring him home until the hunting season closed.

Getting the deer into their car was no problem.

"It just climbed in after me," said Bob Jr.

The deer is so friendly he poses a problem.

How are the Conners going to slip away when they turn the friendly little fellow loose back up in Fairview Canyon?

TEST PLANE BREAKS UP OVER OHIO

Xenia, Ohio (AP) — A high-altitude, twin-jet RB57D test plane disintegrated at 50,000 feet over Greene County Friday and the wingless fuselage plunged into the yard of nearby Beaver Creek High School where 2,040 persons were in the building.

The pilot, Capt. Gerald E. LyVere, 45, escaped serious injury by bailing out. He was taken to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base Hospital.

None of the students was injured although several near the spot of impact—in the center of the U-shaped building—were knocked from their seats. Windows were smashed in several classrooms but other damage was minor.

Debris was spread over a wide area of Greene County, northwest of here, with one wing section being found six miles from the school.

Wright-Patterson officials said it was fortunate that the plane lost its wings before it crashed, since the wings carried the fuel. Had the wings been attached, the fuel might have caused an explosion which would have spread to the school.

"Anyone who doesn't believe in God after today must be out of their mind," said Norman Ashworth, head basketball coach of the school.

1,000 Fans Greet NU Bowl Champs

... PLANE ARRIVES EARLY

Nebraska's Orange Bowl-winning Cornhuskers returned home Friday afternoon as an estimated 1,000 Husker fans cheered and sang.

Most of the crowd consisted of students and likely would have been larger had the gridders, coaches and wives not arrived an hour earlier than scheduled.

With head coach Bob Devaney remaining behind in Miami to view Sunday's pro game between Green Bay and Cleveland, Husker quarterback Dennis Clardie led the Scarlet and Cream gridders from the plane.

Clardie cuddled the Orange Bowl trophy as he came down the ramp and was greeted by a kiss from Nebraska Pom Pom girl

Georgia Merriam.

The senior quarterback told the gathering that the Huskers had gone all out to make coach Devaney glad he decided to stay at Nebraska after being wooed by the University of Miami.

Sally Wilson, president of the Tassels, an NU spirit group, told the team, "You did a great job for our state . . . thanks so much."

Absent were several of the senior members of the squad. Some will be playing in post-season bowl action this weekend. Bob Brown, who reportedly signed one of the richest professional contracts ever offered, went to Cleveland, Ohio, to spend several days with his family before returning for the resumption of classes Monday.

—FIRST LOSS FOR HOLY NAME—

Wickham Rains In 34 As Pius Wins, 87-76

By DAVE WOHLFARTH
Star Sports Writer

Classy Chris Wickham scored 34 points as Lincoln Pius X used its potent offense to hand Omaha Holy Name its first setback of the year, 87-76, Friday night at the Pius Gymnasium.

Wickham, a 6-1 senior sharpshooter, poured in 15 of his points in the third quarter when the Thunderbolts repelled the chief Rambler threat of the evening.

An overflow crowd of 1,300 watched Pius win its fourth game against a single defeat while Holy Name, a Class B powerhouse, went down to its initial loss after whipping off six straight victories.

The Bolts broke fast, bucketing the first field goal and Holy Name never caught up. The Pius attack looked somewhat stale after the two-week holiday layoff, but superior rebounding and Wickham's steady scoring proved enough for the win.

The Omahans made only two serious threats to catch the fast-moving Bolts. Early in the game the Ramblers trailed 7-6 but Bob Chaves, a 6-4 forward, hit a long jumper and the T-Bolts ran to a 22-13 quarter lead.

Then, after trailing 15-37 at the half, Holy Name rallied to press at 47-45 as the Pius offense went flat after the intermission.

But coach Lane Birkel signaled for a time-out and told his men to tighten the defense. This they did and Holy Name didn't get off a shot for a 1½ minute stretch.

Meanwhile, Wickham had gone into his act. After Chaves scored on a hook for a four-point lead, Classy Chris drove in for two nifty layup shots, and one turned into a three-point play when he was fouled.

15 in Third
Wickham continued his on-target firing and scored 15 points in the third quarter to lead Pius to a 16-point advantage at the end of the period, 71-56.

From then on it was no contest as the Bolts moved to their biggest bulge at 81-63 with four minutes left to play.

Wickham finished with 13 field goals and a perfect 8-for-8 at the free throw line. Wickham wasn't the whole show for Pius as the Bolts topped their 82-point per game scoring average. Big Dayle Churchill, 6-4 center, scored 21 points and did a good job in the rebounding department.

Chaves scored 14 points and kept Pius ahead in the early going.

Tom Lehan, a 6-3 junior, led the Ramblers with 24 points. John Moylan scored 21 and Steve Hagerty chipped in with 18.

Moylan, a 6-1 pivot, executed some good moves at his inside spot but fouled out with 7:01 left in the game.

Pius lost three big men via fouls and had a fourth—Churchill—in danger with four. Chaves, Mike Bohaty and Jim Mestl all fouled out.

Next outing for the Thunderbolts is at rugged Sioux City Heelan Jan. 11.

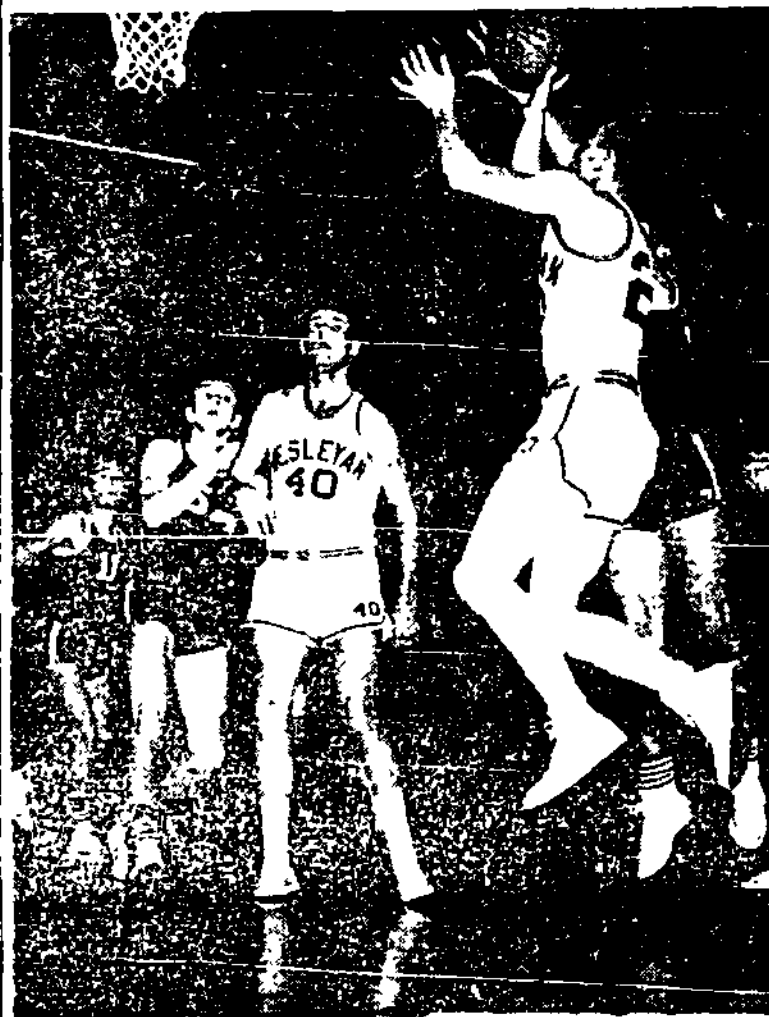

But to basketball fans at Friday's Pius X-Omaha Holy Name game, Bauer was just one of two of the round ball refs who had a hectic night.

Bauer and sidekick Leon Lehr had a busy night as they tried to keep a clear area behind the baskets at the 1300 fans swarmed in at both ends of the floor and they also officiated a rough game, as 53 fouls were called.

Art remarked at halftime, "That first half (27 fouls) was like working four games."

And Bauer, who may have said a word or two to football officials in his grid coaching days, was a target for blasts from both the Pius and Holy Name coaches at one-point—coming from both sides and at the same time.

15 in Third
Wickham continued his on-target firing and scored 15 points in the third quarter to lead Pius to a 16-point ad-

Sizzling Plainsmen Hit 66 Points In 1st Half

... KANSANS FALL, 107-82; DOANE WINS

It didn't take long for McPherson (Kan.) College to discover it was in enemy territory Friday night.

Nebraska Wesleyan rolled to a 19-5 lead in the first three minutes of play, bombed in 41 points with less than nine minutes gone in the game and raced on to a 107-82 victory over the visiting Bulldogs.

The Plainsmen fairly set fire to Taylor gym in the first half of their ninth victory against a single loss. They whizzed through 20 minutes at a sizzling 56% shooting pace, ending up at the intermission with a 66-40 bulge.

Not That Bad

McPherson, which now is 5-6 for the season, actually wasn't that bad. The Bulldogs proved it, too, in the second half, taking advantage of some ragged Wesleyan play to win that portion of the contest, 42-41. But Wesleyan, which obviously suffered a letdown after its near-fantastic show in the first half, was just coasting, and the outcome never was in doubt.

Doane College came back strong in the second half to whip Colorado School of Mines, 67-48, in the opening portion of the night's double-header.

The for clubs switch opponents tonight, Wesleyan taking on the Coloradoans at 7 p.m. and Doane going against McPherson at 9.

Balanced Attack
Wesleyan's scoring Friday was balanced, as usual. Dick Nelson led the way with 22 points, while center Chet Paul added 21. Jim Booher chipped in with 19 and Don Beckmann collected 15. The Plainsmen's shooting percentage nose-dived a bit in the second half, but they still finished with a 49% mark for the game.

John Tegeler scored 19 points, George Czaplinski and Doug Kanehans 15 each and Marlon Enke 12 for McPherson, which could net only 36% of its shots against Wesleyan's aggressive defense.

Wesleyan also won the rebounding battle, although by a narrower 61-58 margin, in a contest marred by 51 personal fouls assessed against the two teams.

Sophis Help
Wesleyan's first-half spurge came with considerable help from the Plainsman sophomore unit. The youngsters entered the contest with 12:28 to play and the score 31-14. They proceeded to hit three times from the field and four from the free throw line before they missed, and when they finished their five-minute stint they had built a 45-24 lead for their first-team mates.

McPherson never recovered after that, although the Bulldogs outshouted Wesleyan on numerous occasions in the second half.

Doane was down by 27-24 at halftime of Friday's opener, but the Tigers roared back to overcome Colorado Mines' slowdown tactics and surge to their fifth victory against seven defeats.

Craig Kelley was the pace-maker in the second-half comeback, pouring in 14 points after the intermission. But Roger Capps and Terry Koch each added 10 during this stretch, with freshman Alan Becher tossing in nine.

Kelley was Doane's high scorer for the night with 17. Capps got 15 and Becher 13. Mike Cruson scored 18 and Boyd Watkins 13 to lead the Orediggers, who now are 5-3 for the season.

Northeast Captures 71-67 OT Thriller From Knights

Lincoln Northeast got its Capital City basketball record squared away at 1-1 Friday night, but it wasn't easy.

The Rockets were forced into an overtime before knocking over Lincoln Southeast, 71-67.

The three minute extra period was the climax to a hectic evening which saw coach Ed Johnson's quintet toss a five-point cushion out the window in just 11 seconds.

The Rockets were in command at 63-58 with those 11 seconds left on the clock and SE's Steve Bock at the charity line.

Bock cashed in both tosses and then made a spectacular steal of the ball on the toss inbound by Northeast. Bock passed to substitute Rod Stall who hit the layup with seven seconds remaining and in the process drew a foul from Chuck Turek.

Stall climaxed the uphill climb moments later as he sank the free throw calmly while the crowd shook the rafters with noise.

But Northeast wasn't to be denied in the overtime. The Knights were hampered in the extra three minutes of play with three regulars on the bench following five fouls each.

In addition, Stall drew his fourth and fifth personals of the night in the overtime.

While the victory kept Northeast hopes alive for an inter-city cage title, it actually left Lincoln High atop the city race with a 1-0 mark.

Jerry Metz played by far his best game of the season to spark Northeast with 26 points. Eight of these came in the final quarter and two in the overtime period.

Terry Monk also provided some key fourth quarter points as the Rockets pulled away to a six point margin three times in the last quarter.

Bob Hahn, a junior playing his first year of varsity competition, pumped in 10 free throws and four field goals for 18 points in the first three quarters of play. He was shut out in the final quarter and the overtime.

Steve Bock fought a gallant, but losing battle for the Knights. He contributed 24 points and was left alone late in the game along with Mike Jennings as the only SE starters still around.

SE lost Doug Dworak, Bob Trotter and Randy Market via the foul route.

The game was close throughout with Northeast's biggest advantages coming in the fourth period.

Southeast moved to a 12-10 lead after eight minutes, but the Rockets bounced back to lead 29-27 at intermission. The score was tied 49-all entering the last stanza.

Southeast won the reserve game, 57-54.

Peru Clouts Graceland
Independence, Mo., (AP)—Bill Witty and Rich Harmon led Peru of Nebraska to a 92-77 basketball victory over Graceland of Iowa Friday night and third place in the Independence Invitational Basketball Tourney.

Witty hit seven field goals and 12 of 13 free throws for 26 points and Harmon got nine fielders and 9 of 13 gift tosses for 21.

Peru was down at the half, 42-41, but outscored the Iowans by a 51-35 margin with a blistering second half attack.

Tom McCracken of Graceland had 11 field goals.

NU Tankmen Go Against St. Louis

Nebraska's swimming team will open the 1964 portion of its campaign Saturday in a 3 p.m. dual against Washington University of St. Louis at the Memorial Coliseum pool.

The Huskers, who defeated Iowa, 55-50, in their only start to date, will be going against a team which compiled a strong 9-1 dual record last season.

Nebraska coach Dick Klaas, who anticipates that the holiday layoff will hurt his tankers, also will be without the services of Bill Henry, his top backstroke. Henry is vacationing in Miami, Fla., and will be unable to get back for the meet.

Offer Rejected

Kansas City (AP)—Charles Finley made a new offer for use of Municipal Stadium by his Athletics Friday and City Council turned him down again. Finley said afterward he has asked a meeting of American League owners Jan. 14 to discuss the situation.

The Nationals will be favored again but it could be a last-team-with-the-ball situation because there should be plenty of passing under the direction of American Football League coaches Al Davis is of the Oakland Raiders and Pop Ivy of the Houston Oilers.

327 Average
Davis is directing the Nationals and starts off with George Bork of Northern Illinois at quarterback. Bork averaged 327 yards per game, most of it throwing the ball.

Davis also has Dave Matheson of Washington State and Gary Hogan of Purdue, each of whom pitches the ball with accuracy.

Ivy's passers will be Beau Carter of Fresno State, who threw for 1,595 yards, and John Jacobs of Arizona State.

Duke Carlisle of Texas, who passed Navy dirty in the Cotton Bowl, won't play offense in this game but will be used on defense at his request. The Southwest appears to

'Bama Troopers At Auburn To Bar Federal Observers

... WHEN FIRST NEGRO REGISTERS

Auburn, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama state troopers took up positions on the Auburn University campus Friday night and announced they would prohibit federal observers from entering Saturday when the school's first Negro student registers.

Alabama Highway Patrol Commander Col. Al Lingo said his force of riot-trained troopers would be sufficient to preserve order when 31-year-old Harold Alonzo Franklin enters the school.

He said he had instructed his officers to bar Justice Department officials sent here as observers when the campus is sealed off at 6 a.m. CST.

'Not Wanted'
"There's no need for them," Lingo said. "They are not wanted." They would only cause trouble.

"We are on duty here to comply with a court order. We will do this. No outside help is needed."

In Washington, Justice Department officials said there were no plans to have federal officers on the campus to enforce the court order. There was no indication that the court order would not be carried out, the officials said.

When Franklin enters the state-supported institution, it will mark the first major desegregation in the Deep South since Lyndon B. Johnson assumed the presidency.

Twenty troopers in prowlers patrolled the darkened campus Friday night, and

HAROLD A. FRANKLIN

Lingo said he had other men stationed at strategic points.

He said only students, faculty members and accredited newsmen would be allowed to enter the sealed-off campus.

The Justice Department sent a team of observers headed by Asst. Atty. Gen. John Douglas and civil rights trouble shooter John Doar.

The officials will keep U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, who is to return to his Washington office from a Colorado skiing vacation, informed of all developments.

Franklin, who will enter the university's graduate school, won another important legal round on the eve of the scheduled desegregation when U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. ruled that Auburn would have to provide him dormitory space immediately.

Will Comply
Shortly after Johnson ruled, Auburn President Ralph B. Draughon announced the school would comply with the federal court order.

Despite the elaborate precautions, no trouble was expected Saturday.

Gov. George C. Wallace, who attempted to block the admission of Negro students to the University of Alabama last summer, said he would probably spend the day at the Senior Bowl football game in Mobile.

The atmosphere thus was in sharp contrast to last June 11 when the late President Kennedy was forced to federalize the Alabama National Guard to dislodge Wallace from his "stand in the school house door" and enforce the desegregation of the University of Alabama.

Calm, Unruffled
Fred Gray, an attorney for Franklin, said the Negro student and his wife, Lela, were "calm and unruffled" by the prospects of Saturday's events.

Franklin is scheduled to register between 1 and 3 p.m. CST at the main library for graduate classes in history and political science.

In announcing Thursday that he had no intentions of being on hand for the desegregation, Wallace made clear he intended to fight the court order under which Franklin was admitted.

Nebraska's Senators Both Back Goldwater

Washington (AP) — Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., told Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Friday he can count on Hruska's support in the race for the Republican presidential nomination.

"I am confident that Nebraska will overwhelmingly endorse your candidacy in primary preference, as well as solidly with national convention delegates," Hruska said in a telegram sent to Goldwater by Hruska from Lincoln.

The text of the telegram was made public through Hruska's office here.

The Nebraska senator assured Goldwater that announcement of his candidacy for the nomination "will be greeted with great enthusiasm throughout America."

Earlier Friday, Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr., in a telegram to Arizona Republicans who were to meet later in the day with Goldwater in Phoenix, said millions of Americans hoped they would insist Goldwater go all out as a candidate.

Curtis added he believes Republicans will nominate Goldwater and he will be elected.

In a telegram to Goldwater, Hruska said: "Voters are now assured of a clear choice between continuance of New Frontier, unsound, dangerous experiments, and the sane, realistic, progressive course for the republic which you so vigorously and truly present. This is a choice long awaited."

Goldwater announced in Phoenix that he will campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Kearney Man Quits Power Review Post

Skd Hellman of Kearney has resigned from the Nebraska Power Review Board and Gov. Frank Morrison has named Ed R. Crowley of Kearney to replace him.

Norman Otto, Morrison's administrative assistant, made the announcement Friday.

Otto said Hellman resigned reluctantly because he found business obligations prevented him from attending all the board meetings and he felt its work is so important each member should be able to attend every session.

Crowley is a real estate and insurance man. Like Hellman, he is a Democrat.

Catholic Priest Warns Against Overpopulation

South Bend, Ind. (UPI) — A Roman Catholic theologian and priest warned Friday that overpopulation poses a threat to the world "second only to the danger of nuclear war."

The Rev. John A. O'Brien, research professor of theology at the University of Notre Dame, said regulation of births, "by moral methods, of course," is the only effective way to cope with the skyrocketing of the world population.

In an article that appeared simultaneously in the current issues of the Christian Century and the Ave Maria, Father O'Brien wrote that by the year 2,000 the present world population will more than double, reaching 6.9 billion.

Tremendous
"In about half a lifetime the population increase will exceed the total achieved in almost a million years," he said.

Father O'Brien said he based his views on a survey he conducted among 25 leading demographers.

The population problem is particularly acute, the priest-professor said, because the greatest increases are occurring in underdeveloped countries least able to sustain them. He cited India, Pakistan, China, Africa and Latin America "where poverty is rampant."

Hunger
"One-half of the world's population suffers from outright hunger," he said. "Two-thirds suffers from undernourishment."

"How," he asked, "are we to meet this ever-increasing threat to the health, welfare and even very existence of the race?"

Wirtz Urges Cut In Overtime

Johnson City, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz suggested Friday that more jobs might be created by discouraging overtime pay through raising the current time-and-a-half rate.

It was not a flat proposal by Wirtz, but he told newsmen after conferring with President Johnson. "I would suggest consideration of whether the present overtime rate is correct."

Noting that the average employee in manufacturing industries works 2.8 hours of overtime each week, Wirtz said if overtime work were eliminated this would create the equivalent of 919,000 full-time jobs.

It has been the argument of some union leaders that many employees prefer to pay time-and-a-half overtime rather than hire additional employees. The argument here is that having fewer employees at overtime is cheaper than hiring more employees at regular rates who would raise the cost of fringe benefits, such as insurance, Social Security taxes, pensions and the like.

Wirtz, however, did not say whether he had discussed the idea with Johnson of raising the overtime rate.

The labor secretary said he discussed with the President the labor department's new budget and concluded "the human needs program will not be cut back."

There will be continued "full speed ahead" on such activities as retraining of manpower in new and needed skills and the promotion of employment opportunities for young people, Wirtz said. He added that one of the most serious unemployment problems facing the nation involves young people. Wirtz said in little more than the past 12 months, the rate of joblessness under the age of 20 has risen from 12% to 17%. This compared to an unemployment rate of only 3.1% among older workers, he said.

A solution he favors, Wirtz told reporters, would involve a large scale expansion of the "education industry" so young people will stay in school longer and equip themselves better for skilled jobs being created by advancing technology.

Ball Purchases Control Of Bank At Council Bluffs

The transaction consummated the sale of the bank to Dale Ball, president of the First National Bank of Fremont. The transaction took place at the Omaha National Bank which is acting as trustee for the sale.

Ball announced he has under contract for purchase an additional 1,200 shares of the total of 50,000. Purchase price is $60 a share.

Decision Likely In Tachovsky Case Next Week

Lincoln Star Special

Wilber — No decision will be reached before next week in the Alfred and Ida Tachovsky exhumation case, according to District Judge Joseph Ach.

Arguments in the case, involving a $240,000 estate of the murder-suicide victims, were heard Friday in Saline County District Court. Relatives are contesting the estate.

Tachovsky apparently shot his wife and fatally wounded himself in May, 1962. The question of which one died first is being sought.

Mrs. Lillian Stastny of Wilber, a sister of Mrs. Tachovsky, contends that disinterment and autopsies is the only way to determine who died first. Relatives of Tachovsky oppose the exhumation.

Consumers To Get License For Hallam Plant In 30 Days

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Friday it intends to issue a license within 30 days for Consumers Public Power District officials to take over operation of the Hallam nuclear power facility.

Plant Manager J. D. Cochran noted that CPPD personnel have been actively engaged in the start-up and testing of the reactor portion of the plant since July of 1961.

"Twenty-seven Consumers operators and supervisors have been individually licensed to operate the plant after an extensive period of formal classroom training and on-the-job experience," he added.

CPPD General Manager R. L. Schacht said the AEC authorization follows a prolonged series of reviews as to the safety of the plant and the capability of CPPD personnel who will run the atomic facility.

Atomics International designed and built the Hallam reactor, the world's only commercial sodium cooled atomic power plant. Final authorization for the CPPD takeover comes 30 days after filing of the notice of intent by the AEC.

When the operating authorization is issued, it will allow CPPD to complete one more step in a schedule set up in 1955.

"The next step in that schedule is the use of the conventional steam boiler to drive a new generating unit," Schacht said.

CPPD has asked the Nebraska Power Review Board for approval to install the second conventional generator. Up to the present time, the conventional boiler has been used as a standby source of steam during the testing period for the atomic reactor.

Irrigation Course Set For Holdrege

Holdrege (UPI)—Holdrege will host an irrigation short course sponsored by the University of Nebraska for farmers in Phelps, Gosper and Kearney Counties with session to be once a week for four weeks.

The initial meeting will be Jan. 21. Water management and cultural practices related to irrigation will be discussed.

Transfer Of Phelps Fund Requested

Holdrege (UPI)—The Phelps County Board of Supervisors has requested that federal aid secondary funds in the amount of $20,703 be turned over to the city of Holdrege.

The funds were allocated to Phelps County for improvement of county roads under the federal aid program. The funds were for the fiscal year ending June 30 but usable through Dec. 30.

In the event the money cannot be transferred due to the late date, the board said the fund for the coming year, also near $21,000, would be requested for transfer for city use.

The money would be used for city entrance of Highway 183 into south Holdrege with the relocation of the road, already under consideration by the State Highway Department. It would be an alternate route rejected by the state that would lead into east Holdrege to junction with Highway 6-34.

The state approved relocation of Highway 183 would bisect southwest Holdrege and cross Highway 6 in the west part of town. City officials argue that most northbound traffic on Highway 183 is bound for Holdrege or points east.

Kellogg Agricultural Interest International In Scope—Crech

The interests of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation in agriculture are international in scope, Dr. Glenwood L. Creech of Battle Creek, Mich., director of the Foundation's Division of Agriculture, told the annual Workers Conference of the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station here Friday.

The Kellogg Foundation provided the funds which made possible the building of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education—where the conference was held Thursday and Friday.

The Kellogg Foundation, Creech said, limits its aid to educational programs. These are numerous enough, he added, that aid can be provided in only a small number of cases in which it is asked.

Last year's Kellogg agricultural program payments totaled over $11 million, Creech said, with $9.7 million supporting programs in the United States. The remainder went to programs in Canada, Europe and Latin America.

"Our present agricultural activities can be classified as fellowships, rural youth activities, Extension activities, agricultural adjustment programs, and general activities," he said.

Kellogg grants have gone to rural youth organizations in England, Wales, Scotland, the Isle of Man, Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.
